Light Vote of 8,000 Forecast for County

POLL WORKERS HAVING EASY PRIMARY JOB

Less Than Third of Total Number of Voters Visit Ballot Booths.

STATE HAS SAME PICTURE

Democrats Out-Voting G. O. P. Affiliates; Commissioner Race Hottest Here.

Fewer than one-third of the registered voters in Richland county and elsewhere in Ohio were going to the polls today to nominate party candidates for state, district and county offices, on the basis of voting before noon

The primary campaign, which failed to draw voters' interest away from the war, appeared more uninspired than ever when some precinct voting places in Mansfield reported that they did not record a vote until 8:30 a. m., two hours after the polls opened. An election board representative forecast a total vote of 8,000 in the county with the Democrats polling 5,000 of them

A survey by the News-Journal before noon showed that voting was the lightest in years in the city and the Democrats were out-voting the Republicans, as anticipated. In Precinct B of the Sixth ward, for example, 10 Democrats and one Republican had cast ballots by 10:30 a. m.

Even in the heavily Republican Second ward, the Democrats were leading the Republicans in votes cast. Thirteen Democrats and 10 Republicans had cast ballots at 10:30 a. m in Precinct B of that ward. There are 100 Democrats registered there as against 275 Republicans.

In other sections of the city the survey showed that 13 Democrats and five Republicans had voted at 10.30 a. m. in Precinct E of the Fourth ward and 14 Democrats and four Republicans in the Democratic Precinct D of the Fifth ward.

Reports from other parts of the state indicated that the pre-

Urges Nation Cut Drinking In Half To Supply Rubber

CHICAGO —(INS)— One way to provide more alcohol for the production of synthetic rubber, it was suggested today, is for the American public to cut down on its drinking.

With that in mind, the American Business Men's Research foundation with headquarters in Chicago recommended that the drinkers of the nation reduce their consumption by 50 per cent.

That, said officials of the foundation, would release 260,000,000 gallons of whisky for immediate conversion into alcohol for production of synthetic rubber.

A companion suggestion was that 50 per cent of the barley, corn and rice consumed annually in the brewing industry, an estimated billion pounds, be diverted to rubber production.

Ohio Men Meet Death When Car Hits Tree In Indiana.

EVANS CITY, Pa — (INS) — When their automobile struck a tree near Evans City, two army inductees from Ohio were killed, authorities reported today.

They were listed as John Victor Orisky, 25, New Middletown, and James Barton Elder, 29, Struthers.

WAR Bulletins

VICHY—(INS)—An additional 93 Frenchmen have been shot, German authorities disclosed today in Paris where new outbreaks of violence were reported recently. It was one of the largest group of hostages to face German firing squads. The Nazi military commander in Paris threatened wholesale punishments unless the whole population of the occupied area co-operates with the Nazis to hunt for alleged "terrorists"

RIO DE JANEIRO —(INS)— A German surface raider is operating in the south Atlantic, approximately 1,200 miles east of Rio de Janeiro, according to reports received today in maritime circles. One freighter has been sunk and at least two others escaped after being shelled, the reports said.

LONDON —(AP)— Britain's food minister, Lord Woolton, ordered planner living today, to the point of eating fewer cookies and more potatoes, to conserve shipping space for "more vigorous prosecution of the war." Cookies will be rationed after Aug. 23, potato consumption will be encouraged and bakers will be asked to use less sugar and dried fruits.

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — The newspaper Svenska Dagbladet reported from Vichy today that Pierre Laval has called up reinforcements of police and troops to protect his pro-Nazi government against a rumored coup d'etat.

CAIRO — (U P) — British light bombing planes have sunk an enemy reinforcement fighter and damaged another off the North African coast, a communique said today, and fighter and fighter-bomber planes have attacked transport vehicles and encampments behind the Axis lines west of El Alamein

MOSCOW —(U.P.)— Large volunteer legions from Spain, France, Belgium and Scandinavia are being thrown into Adolf Hitler's offensive threatening the Red fleet's vital Black sea bases after overwhelming Soviet defenses around the Maikop oil fields, according to front-line advices today.

HE'S NO GANDHI

'Passive Resistance' of Tiffin Man Does Him No Good.

TIFFIN — (INS) — The effort of David B Ringle, 35, to emulate Mohandas Gandhi's "passive resistance" program, failed of its purpose today.

Ringle, accused of failing to report for military service, undressed and crawled into bed. He refused to stir his 225 pounds despite pleas of officers. Deputy sheriffs finally had to dress him and carry him to jail.

Once in jail, Ringle refused food, according to Sheriff George R Stemmetz. An army detail finally took him to a reception center.

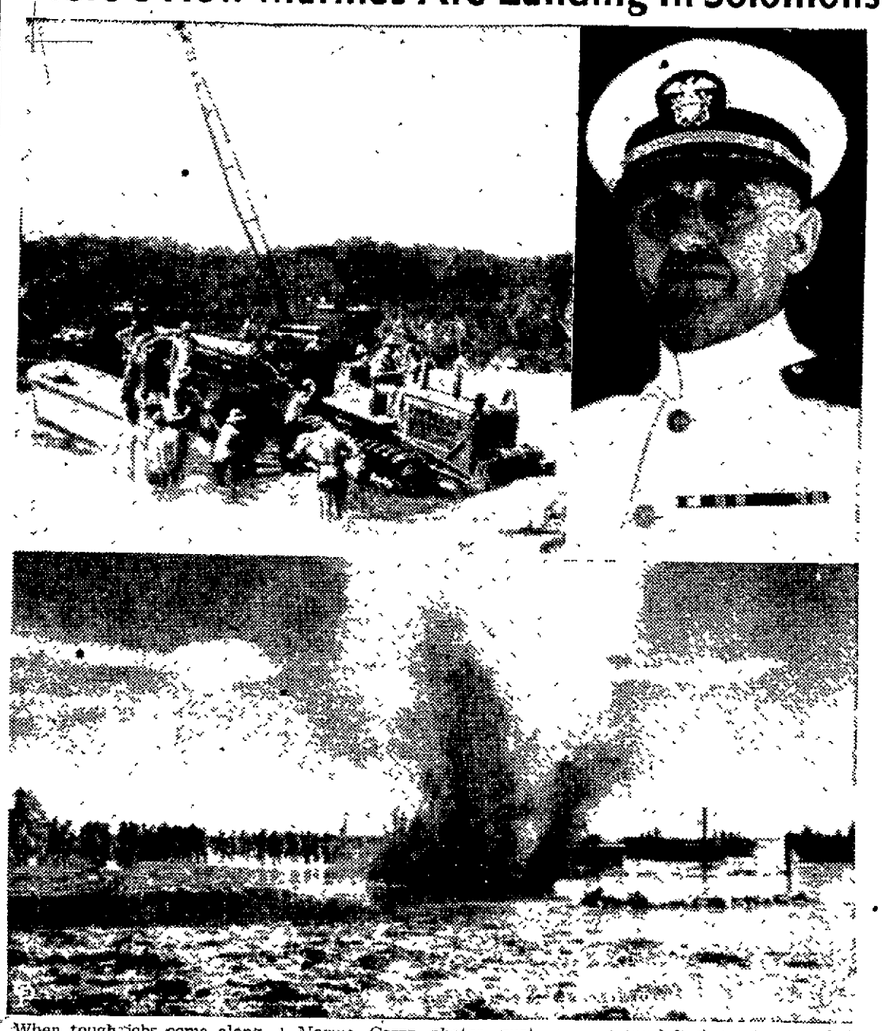
Here's How Marines Are Landing In Solomons



When tough jobs come along, the United States marines always have been on hand as the spearhead of attack. Latest news is that the marines have landed on the Jap-held Solomon Islands These official U. S. Marine Corps photos, just released, were taken only recently on a South Seas island as marines rehearsed landing operations, and these men now may be carrying on the same operations in earnest as part of the Allied attacking forces. Photo at top left shows tractors being driven into the surf from landing barges Photo below shows a contingent of leathernecks as they waded into shore from landing barges Upper right is Vice Admiral Robert Ghormley, who is in command of the offensive.

FUGITIVE 20 YEARS JAILED

Boxing Promoter, Wanted By Reformatory, Says He'll Fight Extradition.

An Ohio State reformatory fugitive for 20 years, Patrick M. Fadden, a 42-year-old boxing promoter, was arrested yesterday in Scranton, Pa on a charge of having escaped the reformatory honor camp at Sandusky in 1923 while serving a 10 to 25 year sentence for a robbery in Lucas county.

The fugitive, known in Scranton, where he had lived for several years, as Peter M. Farrell, told authorities there he would fight extradition.

Fadden, aged 22 when he was received at the reformatory, March 24, 1922, walked away from the Sandusky honor camp Oct. 20, 1923, Arthur L. Glattke, reformatory superintendent, said today. He will be returned to the institution as soon as the extradition issue is settled, Glattke explained.

Under the name of Farrell, the fugitive was arrested in Scranton in 1927 on a murder charge in connection with the fatal shooting of his brother, Martin, but was exonerated by a grand jury. Martin was killed by a revolver bullet as the brothers rode in a truck Peter insisted that his brother accidentally killed himself.

WAITS VERDICT

Evidence in Trial of Navy Officer All In.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Lieut. Cmdr. Maurice N. Aroff, today awaited formal announcement of the findings of a six-man naval court martial which tried him on seven charges of misconduct and falsehood, one of which accused him of accepting a $950 automobile from Tony Martin to facilitate the singer's enlistment.

The procedure of naval courts provides that only decisions of innocent are announced, since a decision of guilty must go to Washington for review. The courtroom was cleared late yesterday and Aroff was not notified that he had been found innocent on any of the charges.

Naval legal regulations, said court martial officials who withheld use of their names, provides that a finding of innocent on any or all of the counts be announced at the conclusion of trial. No such announcement has yet been forthcoming.

GET NEW ORDER ON RATIONING

Boards Told to Accept Sugar Registrations at Any Time; Set for Sign-up Days.

Although the majority of Richland county housewives are expected to apply at their voting places Thursday and Friday for additional canning sugar, the Office of Price Administration today ordered all rationing boards to accept applications at any time.

Thursday and Friday have been designated as sign-up days in Richland county, one of the few counties in Ohio which will use the facilities of the election board to handle canning sugar applications. Voting places will be open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m both days to receive applications.

The plan of receiving canning sugar applications every day except Sunday at rationing board headquarters "is in line with the policy of the OPA that no food shall be wasted because of lack of sugar for canning purposes," said Karl P. Ruth, state rationing representative.

Watches Grandson Saved, Then Dies Of Heart Attack

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Excitement incident to the rescue of his three-year-old grandson from the path of an approaching train was blamed today for the death of Walter W Farrington 66

Jerry Farrington wandered yesterday while visiting at his grandparents' home. Police Chief Thomas Fesmire joined in the search which led along nearby Baltimore and Ohio tracks

Fesmire saw the boy, playing between the rails, just as the train whistled for a crossing. Running up the track and signalling with his arms, Fesmire grabbed Jerry as the locomotive halted a few feet away.

The elder Farrington watched spellbound from the yard of his home, but collapsed from a heart attack before Fesmire and the boy returned.

Shelby Boy, 3, Hit By Train; Bloody Nose His Only Injury

SHELBY — When 3-year-old Norbert Ensman grows up, he can tell about the time he was struck by a freight train and suffered nothing worse than a bloody nose.

It happened Sunday night at the Baltimore and Ohio railroad crossing in West Main street.

The car driven by his father, Fred Ensman of Shelby, stalled on the tracks. Mr. and Mrs. Ensman and three of their children, James, Margaret and John, got out of the car and started to push it off the tracks.

Just then a freight train pounded around the bend, and the Ensmans leaped to safety, thinking the baby had also been taken from the car.

But little Norbert could "take it." They saw him bouncing up and down in the car as the freight locomotive crashed into the automobile, spun it around, and sent it smashing against a nearby light standard.

The Ensmans ran to the car, fearing the worst. And there was Norbert, his nose bleeding, but otherwise uninjured.

A little first aid by City Fireman Kenneth Hagerman, Red Cross first aid instructor, stopped the bleeding, and little Norbert was happy as ever.

Marion Man Dies, Daughter-In-Law Injured in Collision on Route 42.

FOG CONTRIBUTING FACTOR

Car Runs Into Parked Truck, Then Second Truck Plows Into Wreckage.

The six-mile stretch of U. S. Route 42 known as "the Bloody Six" claimed another victim early this morning as George F. Long, 46 an employe of the Standard Oil company in Marion, was killed when his car was crushed between two large trucks and their trailers five miles northeast of Mansfield.

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mary Lou Long, 23, of Lorain, who was riding with him, miraculously escaped death, her only injury being a fractured leg and cuts and bruises She was taken to General hospital

A dense fog at 6 30 a. m. was largely to blame for the accident which brought Richland county's traffic total to eight for the year as compared to 19 on the same date last year.

Inflict Heavy Losses on Jap Defense Force

Australian Officials Say Gains Made By Marines, Navy Far Outweigh Losses Suffered As Reported Here By Admiral King.

By MURLIN SPENCER

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—(AP)—The Allied forces which accomplished their planned landings in an air, land and sea-borne attack on the Solomon islands are under strong Japanese counter-attack, but "we are holding our own," Australian Prime Minister John Curtin announced today.

Curtin said that American Admiral Ernest J. King's Washington announcement yesterday, despite its listing of the loss of one Allied cruiser sunk and two cruisers, two destroyers and one transport damaged, indicated Allied gains so far have greatly outweighed losses.

The prime minister's brief statement was the first word from an official source in Australia on the main operations in the Solomons. Communiques issued by General MacArthur's headquarters have dealt only with an support given the invasion thrust directed by Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, supreme commander of Allied naval forces in the South Pacific area.

Today's communique told of a third destructive assault in as many days upon Rabaul, main Japanese flank base in New Britain, and attacks on Japanese shipping below Timor, more than 2,000 miles to the west, in which a heavy destroyer and two merchant ships were knocked out.

It also was disclosed that Australian land forces were not involved in the Solomon islands attack, but that Australian naval units participated and Australian air forces were cooperating in the increasingly-powerful attacks on Japanese bases.

A dispatch from an advanced base said that the attack at Timor was carried out at low level by Australian-manned bombers.

"My bombs made a nasty hole in a 4,000-ton ship," said an Australian flight lieutenant. "After bombing, I machine-gunned the target and I saw Japs diving through a hell of bombs and bullets into the sea from the deck and from every other hole they could find."

One of the ships was seen sinking nose first.

MENACE: Nazi Gains Peril Two Russian Black Sea Bases

(By Associated Press)

Tank-led German troops were reported imperiling the Red fleet's Black sea naval bases at Novorossisk and Tuapse deep in the western Caucasus today, while in the north, according to a Vichy broadcast, fighting was in progress within Stalingrad's defense zone

The broadcast said there were indications that the Germans would shortly launch a general assault on the great Volga river industrial city

Another Vichy report declared that Nazi columns, striking more than half way down the Caucasus on the road to the vast Baku oil field, were advancing on Mozdok and Ordzhonikidze.

Mozdok lies about 380 miles northwest of Baku and 70 miles above the important Grozny oil center. Ordzhonikidze is 50 miles southwest of Grozny.

Soviet dispatches acknowledged that the Red armies were falling back from the burning Maikop oil fields and that separate German columns were within 60 miles of the Novorossisk and Tuapse naval bases as the invaders spread out through the northern foothills of the Caucasus mountains.

As the crisis grew darker by the hour, official Soviet newspapers appealed to the Red armies to save Russia, and Red Star, the army organ declared:

"The fate of our country is being decided in the violent battles of the Don and the Kuban."

Red Star quoted an 18th century Russian general who told his troops

"We are surrounded by mountains . . . We cannot expect help

INDIA: Hindu-Moslem Riots Feared As Indian Crisis Grows

BULLETIN

BOMBAY—(AP)—British troops, some armed with machine-guns, came to the aid of police today as 13 more persons were killed and 30 injured in 10 instances in which gunfire was used to break up Bombay mobs participating in Mohandas K. Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign.

(By Associated Press)

BOMBAY—Rioting, mill stoppages and police volleys into turbulent mobs spread wider over India today amid indications that dreaded communal riots between Hindus and Moslems might break out to heighten the crisis.

The toll increased with the violence By mid-afternoon casualty records listed 28 killed Scores were injured

Work was interrupted at the General Motors assembly plant in Bombay. The Ford assembly plant continued in operation

The government took increased measures to restore and keep order. In some areas troops marched in where police strength seemed inadequate to cope with expected outbreaks

From Bombay on the west coast to Calcutta on the east coast came reports of demonstrations hartals (the closing of stores) and goondaism (rowdyism) as the call for a total shutdown of trade spread to Mohandas K Gandhi's turbulent followers with a promise from their leaders of victory in two months in what they called their "final struggle" against British rule.

Police said the slightest spark might touch off rioting between the sub-continent's opposing religious groups, Hindus and Moslems.

Two days of rioting already had brought the death toll in Bombay alone to 15—all Indians shot attacking police or attempting to destroy suburban railroad stations or grain warehouses.

There were new demonstrations this morning in the Dadar, Parel and Matunga sections of the city. Bonfires were started in the streets and fed with hats, neckties and other articles of European clothing snatched from passersby.

Police opened fire twice when mobs set fire to a wooden police guard post and attempted to halt traffic.

The first hysterical, shouting crowds of the week-end, when the

U. S. OFFENSIVE 'HOLDS OWN' IN PACIFIC BATTLE

Gains Outweigh Losses, Says Australian Leader, Though Japs Counter-Attack.

nouncement said, Allied forces strongly engaged the enemy yesterday and forced him to withdraw from prepared positions.

This was a variation from previous announcements of patrol activity in this theater of the Papuan peninsula 60 miles east of the Allied base at Port Moresby.

An Australian government spokesman disclosed that shipments of supplies of "highest possible value" that would "revolutionize offensive operations in the north" were landed recently in Australia.

"Supplies constantly are coming in," said the spokesman, who gave much credit to the negotiations recently conducted in Washington by H. V. Evatt, Australian attorney general and minister of external affairs.

"In three or four months Australia already has had results of Evatt's visit in the arrival of all kinds, such as army equipment, war materials and tanks," the spokesman said.

Allied losses acknowledged yesterday by Admiral King, commander in chief of the U. S. fleet, included a cruiser sunk and damage to two cruisers, two destroyers and a transport.

But Admiral King declared "a large number" of Japanese planes were destroyed and "surface units put out of action" in America's first offensive of the war.

In a typical Axis propaganda broadcast, surpassing even Japan's own extravagant claims, the Berlin radio asserted that the greater part of the U. S. troops who "attempted" to land at Tulagi, in the southeastern Solomons, had been "annihilated" and their transports sunk.

With the attacking forces using all communications to coordinate their land, sea and air operations, the navy in Washington said early today there was no further information on the progress of the battle.

Admiral King previously had said the Japanese, although taken by surprise, had "counterattacked with rapidity and vigor."

The attack was "our first assumption of the initiative and the offensive," King said, adding that the objective was to wrest back control of the Solomons, which lie athwart the vital Allied supply lines to Australia.

(Such a move would be necessary as the first step in a full-scale Allied offensive to drive the enemy out of the whole threatening "umbrella" of Japanese invasion bases north of Australia, ranging from the Solomons in the east to Java in the west.)

King First to Tell Marines Had Landed

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The first official disclosure that American marines had landed in the Solomons came from Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet, whose detailed statement of the battle emphasized that the battle marked the Allies' "first assumption of the initiative and of the offensive."

King said the attacking forces took advantage of "an initial surprise" and succeeded in carrying out "planned landings." The Japanese, he added, counter-attacked "with rapidity and vigor."

His statement that the objective of the attack was to occupy the islands in the Tulagi area of the Solomons and to make use of it "for our own purposes," committed the United States and its Allies to take and keep the islands.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox had revealed in a speech at Kearny, N. J., that members of the army were supporting the marines.

The nation was warned by King to expect heavy losses.

"It should be understood that the operation now underway is one of the most complicated and difficult in warfare," he said. "Considerable losses, such as are inherent in any offensive operation, must be expected as the price to be paid for the hard won experience which is essential to the attainment of far reaching results."

U. S. Planes Again Attack Jap Bases

BULLETIN

U. S. ARMY AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS, Hengyang —(U.P.)—U. S. army bombers, continuing their offensive against important Japanese-held centers, dumped tons of bombs on enemy military objectives in Canton in a big-scale raid today.

HENGYANG, China — (U.P.) — American bombing planes blasted Japanese installations, barracks, airfields and railway stations at Nanchang and Yochow today and shot down three of the Japanese planes that tried to intercept them, it was announced

Japanese interceptors challenged the Americans in the vicinity of Nanchang, 210 miles northeast of Hengyang, but at Yochow there was no enemy opposition and the pilots and their crews took their time in placing bomb loads on enemy barracks, warehouses and the railway station.

Direct hits were scored on every target, it was reported. At Nanchang, the western terminus of the Nanchang-Hangchow railway that runs through Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces, a Japanese hangar and airfield runaway were hit.

REDS HAVE VAST METAL RESERVES

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)— Uncle Sam still lags seriously in the important matter of production, storage and importation of vital minerals necessary to carry on a successful war, according to Samuel G. Gordon of the Academy of Natural Sciences.

Soviet Russia alone among the United Nations seems to have prepared stockpiles of these "vitamins of war," said Gordon, pointing out that Germany and Japan were not lax in that respect.

"For years, thousands of geologists have been employed in prospecting throughout the U. S. S. R." the mineralogist explained. "Russia has increased her coal, lead and copper reserves 10 times, and her iron reserves 33 times."

from anybody. . . . We stand on the edge of abyss. . . ."

Front-line dispatches said the Germans were showering parachute troops behind the Russian lines near Kotelnikovski, 95 miles below Leningrad, but said the aerial invaders were being promptly mopped up.

Military advices pictured the whole region from Kletskaya, 75 miles northwest of Stalingrad, to the south as a land of flames, with the cherry orchards and steppe homes of the Cossacks smashed and burning and the skies darkened by mass flights of Nazi planes.

A bulletin from Nazi field headquarters declared the Russians were attempting to flee from the Black sea ports of Novorossisk, Tuapse and Anapa, and said German warplanes stepping up their attacks on embarkation movements had sunk 11 transports.

The German high command said the Russians had been thrown back from Maikop into the Caucasus mountains in several sectors, but gave no indication that Nazi spearheads had advanced anywhere near Ordzhonikidze or Mozdok.

In the battle of the Don river bend, before Stalingrad, the Nazi command asserted that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's defenders were "driven together in a narrow space where they faced annihilation."

To the north, in the Rzhev sector 130 miles west of Moscow, the Germans acknowledged that they were fighting a "heavy defensive battle," with the Red armies, newly reinforced, pressing a strong attack.

Russia to Hold Out, Says Envoy

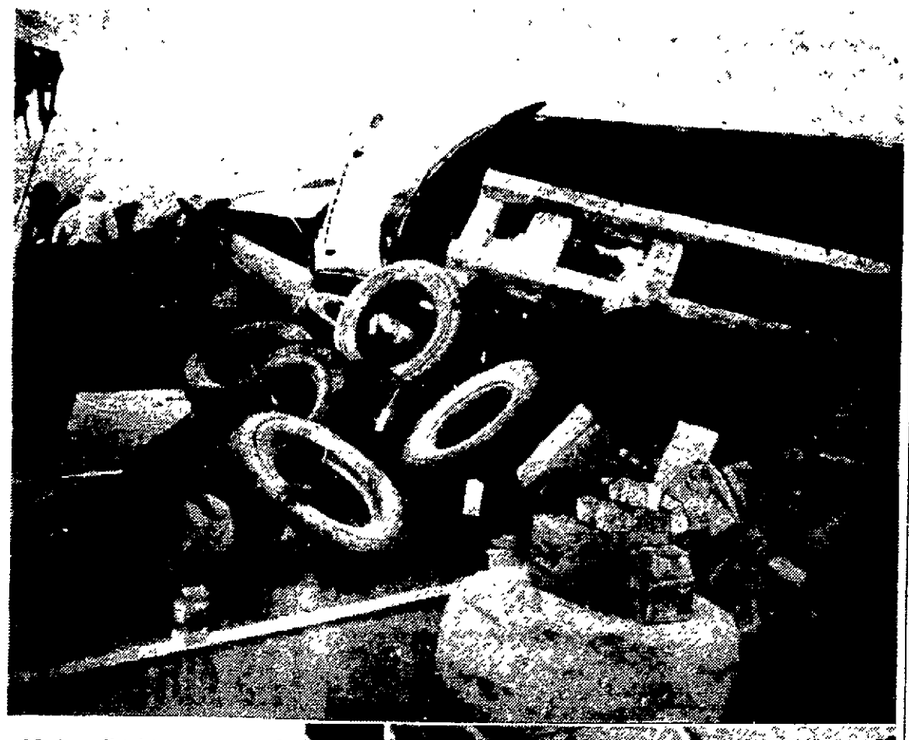
MOSCOW—(INS)— Firm conviction that Russia will continue to resist the advancing German armies was expressed today by United States Ambassador William H. Standley, although he held out little hope for early opening of a second front in Europe.

Asked if he thought the Russians could hold out without a second front, Standley said:

"I don't think there is any indication at this time that the Russians have the slightest idea of quitting."

Admiral Standley admitted frankly that "we are all disappointed that the German submarine campaign has been as effective as it has with regard to our supplies to Russia."

Where Driver Met Death In Crushed Car



Marion district manager of the Standard Oil company, George F. Long, 46, was killed this morning on U. S. Route 42, north of Mansfield when his car was crushed between two large trucks and their trailers. Travelling with him, his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mary Lou Long, 23, of Lorain, received a broken leg in the crash. At top is shown the spilled load and overturned trailer of one of the motor transports involved in the accident. Below is shown Long's body slumped in the seat before removal from the demolished sedan.

happened. The small pickup truck, used as a repair truck by Commercial Motor Freight, was pushed into the ditch when sideswiped by Long's car before the auto crashed into the trailer.

State patrolmen directed one-way traffic for about four hours as wreckage and the trailer's load of miscellaneous articles was cleared from the road.

Long, an employe of Standard Oil since 1913 had been chief clerk of the Marion division since 1930. He was making a business trip to Cleveland when the crash occurred.

Acting Coroner A. C. Biddle gave a verdict of death due to brain concussion. Long also suffered compound fractures of the left knee in the accident.

Long is survived by his widow, Mrs. Daphne Long; two sons, Neil Long of Lorain and George F. Long, jr., at home; and a daughter, Miss Mary V. Long of Columbus; also four brothers, Lewis of Lorain; Charles and Otto of Marion; and Joseph Long of Steubenville.

First taken to the Geiger funeral home in Mansfield, the body was later removed to Marion. Funeral services are to be conducted at 2 p. m. Friday, at the Emmanuel Lutheran church in Marion.

adamant All-India congress committee made Gandhi generalissimo of its "do-or-die" drive for immediate independence and Britain countered by arresting him and his high command, had begun to dwindle.

There was no sign of a general abatement, however, as soldiers and armed police stood guard in five Indian centers and some official opinion was less hopeful that strong-handed methods wound quiet the Indian zealots.

A crowd at Parel burned park benches. Some persons were injured when police fired to break up the mob.

Stores closed at Karachi, and in a Calcutta heavy-industry district the operators of bullock carts quit work.

Students quit colleges in such university towns as Bombay, Nagpur and Bangalore.

Police, wary against the possibility of Hindu-Moslem riots, said the slightest incident might set off this sort of strife.

Less Than Third of Total Number of Voters Visit Ballot Booths.

diction of George Neffner, state election expert, that not more than 700,000 voters would go to the polls probably would be about right. He expected the Democrats to cast about 375,000 votes. A 700,000 total vote would be less than half that recorded in each of the last two primaries.

The Democratic county commissioner race was holding the spotlight in Richland county, providing the only purely county fireworks in the campaign.

Party workers were reluctant today to predict the winner in the three-way contest involving C. L. Mitchell, incumbent commissioner, Fred Becker of Shelby and E. P. Long, former Richland county sheriff.

The Democratic race for the nomination for governor also was holding the interest of Richland countians. With five candidates in the field, most party leaders felt that "just about anything can happen." The candidates are Clarence H. Knisley of Bainbridge, Joseph T. Ferguson of Barberton, John McSweeney of Wooster, Walter F. Heer and Frank A. Dye, both of Columbus.

The isolationism issue has stirred a little interest in the 17th district which includes Richland county, but few Republicans thought Congressman J. Harry McGregor, seeking renomination, would have difficulty defeating Col. Oliver H. Dockery of Newark, twice defeated for congress.

The Democratic contest for the congressional nomination in the 17th district is between Samuel A. Anderson, Newark service director, and Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling of Ashland county.

Other contests on the Democratic ticket were for lieutenant governor, state treasurer, attorney general, and for 17th district state central committeeman.

Besides the congressional nomination, those to be decided by the Republicans were for secretary of state, supreme court judge, state senator in the 27th-29th district, including Richland county, and county commissioner.

The G.O.P. commissioner foes were John C. Friday of Springfield township and C. L. Shoup of Plymouth township. There were five candidates in the race for the state senatorial nomination, including Ralph A. Winter of Lodi, C. J. Pittenger of Richland county, Joseph Jameson, P. H. Rogers and Elmer Borchert of Lorain county.

With a light vote certain, election board officials said returns would be completed early tonight. Lack of primary contests also was expected to speed the vote tabulation. Polls will remain open until 6:30 p. m.

Five States Hold Primaries Today

(By United Press)

Five states were holding primaries today and in four, incumbent congressmen were being opposed for re-nomination on the grounds that they were isolationists before Pearl Harbor.

The states were New York, Ohio, Nebraska, Idaho, and Arkansas.

New York — Rep. Hamilton Fish, R., nationally prominent prewar isolationist, was opposed in the 26th district, which is President Roosevelt's home district, by three opponents for Republican re-nomination.

In New York City, Rep. William B. Barry, D., and Vito Marcantonio, American Labor party, were opposed for re-nomination on isolationist grounds—Barry, because he was an isolationist before Pearl Harbor, Marcantonio because he was one before Germany attacked Russia.

Ohio: Rep. Martin L. Sweeney, D., Cleveland, was opposed for renomination by Michael Feighan, who accused him of pre-war isolationism.

Nebraska—Rep. Harry B. Coffee was seeking the Democratic senatorial nomination, acknowledging his opponents' charge that he was a pre-war isolationist but saying that was a dead issue. His chief opponent was Foster May, a radio announcer.

Idaho—Sen. John Thomas, R., Rep. Compton I. White, D., and Rep. Henry C. Dworshak, R., were opposed for re-nomination by a number of opponents and all were accused of pre-war isolationism.

Arkansas—Jack Holt, state attorney general, and John L. McClellan were contesting for the Democratic senatorial nomination in a run-off primary.

WAR SABOTAGES ROYAL ROMANCE

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Love may laugh at locksmiths but it certainly isn't smiling on young King Peter II of Yugoslavia. The king admitted in Washington that the war has sabotaged his romance with Princess Alexandria, of Greece, 21-year-old niece of King George II.

But the nation's first lady, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, disclosed that the war has had an opposite effect on her. She said she is receiving mail from lovelorn soldiers who want advice on whether or not they should get married.

BLAME SWITCH ERROR

MIDDLETOWN — (AP) — New York Central railroad officials indicated today on the basis of a preliminary inquiry that an improperly thrown switch caused the wreck of a freight train Sunday night in which two cabooses were destroyed and five freight cars damaged.

certificates by mail, using the application form reproduced last Thursday in The News-Journal. Additional forms are available at rationing board headquarters on the Farmers Bank building. One pound of sugar may be obtained for each four quarts of finished canned fruit.

If applications or certificates are sought by mail, letters should be addressed to the sugar rationing board, Farmers Bank building, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope must be enclosed.

The application form must be filled out and mailed to the rationing board, sending along sugar ration books for the family and another self-addressed, stamped envelope. In the application, show the quantity of sugar obtained for spring canning, the number of quarts canned in the fall season a year ago and an estimate of the number to be canned this season.

The board then will mail your certificates and return your ration books.

REPORT SHOWS Y. M. C. A. BUSY WITH EVENTS DURING SUMMER

Annual mid-summer reports prepared by Ralph B. Chapman, Y. M. C. A. general secretary, show a total attendance of 6,996 members and non-members for all Y activities during the month of July.

Figures are a total of each separate day's attendance, and consequently the number of individual persons is considerably less since many members were counted a number of times during the month.

Y summer activities for boys have included swimming classes, junior softball league, workshop and camp sessions at Y. M. C. A. Camp Nelson Dodd. Men have been taking part in volleyball classes, boxing, handball, barbell work and Phalanx fraternity.

Boys' swimming classes have been about twice as large this year as in 1941. Approximately 80 different youngsters from nine to 16 years of age attend classes four afternoons a week. Physical Director John W. Fike has taught 23 boys to swim this summer.

Ninety-six boys, belonging to eight different teams have been playing ball five mornings a week in the junior softball league. Games are played at the various city parks.

Three different camp periods were held at Camp Nelson Dodd this summer with about 60 Mansfield boys attending the sessions. Another large group are given training in woodworking in the workshop five afternoons a week.

Every Monday night both boys and girls of high school age belonging to the Monday Night club gather in the Y gym for dancing to the music of a phonograph. The organization's weekly dances have an average attendance of more than 200 youths.

The Y. M. C. A. has also conducted an Odd Job Employment bureau for 60 boys of high school age who have been mowing lawns, hauling trash and doing other part time work during their summer vacations.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Grace Moore is one of opera's more glamorous stars and also a lady of wit and opinion. So I've asked her to do a little piece on the things she adores — and the things she can't stand! Hold your hats! —D.K.)

Grace Moore Says—

I DON'T LIKE...second rate foreign singers and conductors who pass themselves off as masters in their art, dictate the musical policies of our opera houses, earn golden American dollars and never help any struggling American artist....The long parade of curious who come backstage after a performance, crowd into the dressing room, smoke cigarets and toss half-hearted compliments to the artists....dull receptions after a concert and the so-called suppers of demi-tasse and two lady fingers. I play safe now and send in my menu in advance...The reporter who comes for an interview and asks "And now, Miss Moore, tell me how did you start your career?" That's an old story now.

Fat women in spangles...Thin women who wear delicate evening gowns showing boney shoulders and think they are "chic"....People who stop you on windy street corners and who want to know everything you've been doing for the past month while you hold on to your hat and skirts and your bag probably drops to the sidewalk and everything rolls off down the street....People who write three bars of just fair music and twenty bad, call it a song and send it to me insisting that I include it in my next concert series...Wit that is demonstrated at the sacrifice for other people's feelings.

Nearly all prima donnas' autobiographies. They seem to be written under a stubborn resistance to retirement, over-sentimentalizing their own epoch and rarely criticizing the present generation constructively...Any famous star who doesn't carry with happy freedom his responsibility to the public that made him famous...Sport or entertainment that must be watched in a smoky room...People who don't know how to share success with those they love.

Being met by a surprise barrage of reporters, photographers and one hundred and fifty assorted people when I get off a train at 6:30 a. m. sleepy-eyed, with my hair in a net, and pajamas peeping out from underneath my coat...Royal and Presidential suites. They're always dim and stuffy and on a lower noisy floor. I'll take a single sunny room high up....People who call me by first name on short acquaintance just because I've been polite to them...Pessimists.

I LIKE...Police escorts with loud sirens...Flying over the Andes...The President of Brazil ...His minister of foreign affairs, Dr. Oswaldo Aranha...Dr. Padilla, foreign minister of Mexico, one of the great statesmen of the last twenty years and one of the best friends America has...Being decorated. I have fourteen medals and awards from foreign countries. They are happy souvenirs of a temporarily lost world. ...Singing before record-breaking crowds. Like the one of 300,000 in Grant park, Chicago, the largest single crowd ever to gather in one place to hear a singer.

The outdoor flower markets in Copenhagen. I hope the Nazis let them bloom....The luxury of the two-dollar a day living in the old days at small hotels in a fishing village along the French Riviera...Our arrival in Stockholm and drive in a carriage drawn by four white horses through crowded streets of cheering people... The tide at the foot of Mount St. Michel beating over six miles of empty sand space like the terrific tattoo of drums to an operatic finale...Open air restaurants in Sweden....Norwegian mountain top restaurants and the Sunday luncheon crowds. The wonderful shell-fish in Chile...The strange tropical fruits in Mexico and Brazil...The big open fireplace cooking on my grandfather's East Tennessee farm . . . London's great restaurants and the Americans' rapidly increasing appreciation of good food.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Down in Tampa, Fla., a movie troupe from Hollywood is filming what amounts to the story of our war in the Pacific to date.

Coons

There's a story behind the story—a reason why it's the first air war movie since Dec. 7 to have the full cooperation of the government, which hasn't time for run - of-the-reel mellers because of other jobs on hand.

IT WAS six months ago that Howard Hawks, the director, was dining with Gen. H. H. "Hap" Arnold, chief of the U. S. Air Force.

"I'd like to see you make a picture on the air force," said the general.

"What about?" said Hawks.

"You know about pictures, Howard," said "Hap" Arnold. "That would be up to you."

They talked it over, like the friends they are of nearly 10 years' standing, and Hawks got the scenarist. The two of them wrote the story—the story that was already written for them in war department records of heroism and disaster at Pearl Harbor, on Wake, in the Philippines.

General Arnold picked his man for the job well. Hawks was in the air corps in the last war, has had big success on air films—the first "Dawn Patrol," "Only Angels Have Wings," and "Ceiling Zero."

"I'd call this a documentary film," said Hawks before he flew to Florida, "except that the term, to me at least, connotes dullness. We're using nothing that didn't happen, and all we're adding is enough to give the characters a background. The boys—we're not using the names of the real heroes, but those who know our fliers will be able to recognize traits and mannerisms."

THE film will be a record of disaster as well as victories and heroism—but the lesson, according to Hawks, will be there: outnumbered 10 to 1, American fliers bagged Jap planes to the tune of 4 to 1.

There are three feminine roles, all small, in "Air Force," but the heroine—the star, in fact—is "Mary-Ann," a B-17 which sets out with its crew on a routine training flight from San Francisco to Hawaii and gets the Pearl Harbor news en route. The crew aside from John Garfield and Harry Carey, is composed mostly of new names—Gig Young, Arthur Kennedy, James Brown, John Ridgley, Ray Montgomery, Charles Drake—names as "new" as those, before the war, of Colin Kelly, Hewitt Wheless, and other air heroes.

HITS BURDENING OF LOW PAID IN NEW TAX PLAN

La Follette Asserts Schedule Threatens War Manpower Requirements.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert M. La Follette, Prog. Wis., said today that the pending new tax rates so greatly increase the burden of masses of low wage earners as to threaten the manpower requirements of the war.

With single persons earning more than $9.62 a week and all heads of families earning more than $23.08 a week subject to an initial 24 per cent tax above those exemptions, La Follette said, the rates in the house-approved $6,270,900,000 revenue bill would amount to "taxing the food off the table of the lower income groups."

"From the standpoint of the long war—and we must predicate our policies on that basis —it's a big mistake," he said.

Asserting that $40 a week (or about $2,000 a year) is "really not a decent standard for an American family," La Follette said:

"I recognize the vital necessity of collecting all that we can in taxes, but in view of the fact that we have now entered an era of astronomical expenditures and deficits, congress must exercise its taxing power in such a war as not to undermine the health and efficiency of the masses and in such a manner as will enable the productive enterprises of this country to operate at a maximum peak of efficiency."

He noted that even at present tax rates, the army has found it necessary to reject many men for malnutrition.

La Follette, a member of the senate finance committee, told reporters he would oppose the drastic increases of the house bill for the lower income group of taxpayers. He said that above all congress should first make efforts to obtain more money from estate taxes, taxation of income from tax-exempt securities, wiping out depletion allowances for oil, gas, and minerals, and taxing income in community property states according to the course.

OPENS HUNT FOR MORE TEACHERS

State Department Arranges Conferences and Looks to Married Women.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—With opening of the school year only a month away, Ohio schools face such a shortage of teachers that the state education department has arranged a series of district meetings to help local boards start classes on schedule.

Kenneth C. Ray, education director, said local superintendents may report their needs and submit suggestions at these meetings next week: Monday, Kent; Tuesday, Bowling Green; Wednesday, Dayton; Thursday, Athens; and Friday, Columbus.

The armed forces have cut deeply into the supply of men teachers and private industry and government offices have taken hundreds of women educators.

Perhaps the greatest shortage of men teachers will occur in Smith-Hughes vocational agriculture courses, Ray added. Some industrial arts and shop training classes also will be teacherless unless communities share their instructors on a part-day basis, it was indicated.

The greatest hope for filling staffs this year is by hiring married women among whom "there are a lot of good teachers," Ray said.

Ray said he did not know of any schools planning to open later than the usual early-September scheduled date in order to find more teachers but he emphasized that schools could do that if necessary so long as they completed a 180-day school year to qualify for state financial aid.

NAMED TO POST

Shelby School Head Appointed To State Position.

SHELBY—C. G. Keck, superintendent of schools here, today was appointed state supervisor of occupation, information and guidance in the state department of education.

His duties will be to organize the program which is to be a new one for the state department. His appointment was made by Kenneth C. Ray, state director.

Supt. Keck has been granted a temporary leave of absence to take over his new post. Principal O. H. Schaaf, high school principal, will be acting superintendent during his absence.

Keck has been connected with Shelby schools 16 years, five of them as superintendent.

Keck will receive a $4,500 yearly salary in the state job.

DIG IN DEBRIS FOR 11 BODIES

Workers Use Steam Shovels After Brewery Collapse.

MILWAUKEE —(U.P.)— Workers using two steam shovels dug into a mound of bricks, broken glass and timbers today seeking the bodies of 11 workmen, buried beneath a collapsed four-story brewery warehouse.

One body—identified as that of William Schaedlich, 48,—was removed early today, 15 hours after the accident occurred.

Hope that any of the others remained alive was non-existent.

The 30-year-old building, formerly a tannery, collapsed yesterday while 25 workmen, who had been remodeling the wood and brick structure, were inside. Thirteen escaped and six of them were injured, one critically.

21 MAROONED ON STRANDED PLANE

Dry Lake Bed Flooded By Run-off From Cloudburst.

LAS VEGAS, Nev.—(U.P.)—Western Air Lines salvage crews worked today to recover a large passenger plane that made a forced landing on a desert lake bed, 90 miles south of Las Vegas, Sunday, marooning its crew of three and 18 passengers for 15 hours.

Run-off water from a cloudburst flooded the normally dry bed of Silver lake after the plane made its emergency landing and the occupants were forced to stay with the ship.

Airline officials said it would take several days to remove the plane from the lake.

MAINTAIN CLOSE GUARD OVER TWO IMPRISONED SABOTEURS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — George John Dasch and Ernest Peter Burger, the two Nazi saboteurs who talked their way out of the electric chair, were the most closely guarded prisoners in the nation today because of fears that German agents might try to silence their lips.

With the electrocution of their six co-conspirators Saturday, the army has now turned Dasch and Burger back to the custody of the justice department — Dasch to serve a 30-year jail term and Burger to spend the rest of his life behind prison bars.

The justice department, it was learned, is aware of the full ramifications of the daring German sabotage plot. Instead of lessening precautions after the other saboteurs were executed, the department ordered Dasch and Burger guarded just as vigilantly as they have been since their capture.

As two German submarines were able to approach American shores in mid-June to land the saboteurs, the department is taking no chances on the possibility that some Gestapo agents might be put ashore with orders to kill the two surviving spies.

Precautions also were taken to prevent German agents already in the country or Nazi sympathizers from taking a shot at Dasch and Burger. The precautions were taken on the basis of secret information in justice department hands, some of it of such a nature that it was not even divulged at the trial of the eight saboteurs before a military commission.

FALL FATAL

Henry G. Moore, 79, Killed In Tumble Down Stairs.

Henry G. Moore, 79, retired stone cutter, was killed in a fall down a flight of stairs at 21½ East Fifth street at 12:02 a. m. today as he was leaving the apartment of Herman Clay, with whom he had spent the evening.

Clayd told police officers that he heard Moore fall just after he went out of the apartment. He then saw Moore lying at the foot of the stairs. An ambulance was summoned but Moore was dead on its arrival.

Acting Coroner A. C. Biddle pronounced death due to a brain concussion.

Mr. Moore came to Mansfield 44 years ago. He was born in Columbus April 11, 1863. He is survived by two sons, George and Russell, both of Mansfield and one sister, Mrs. Mary Straub of Columbus. His home here was located in the rear of 270 Park avenue east.

Funeral services will be at the Wappner funeral home Thursday at 10 a. m. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

MOVES PLANTS

Germany Takes Entire Italian War Factories to Reich.

ANKARA, Turkey — (AP) — A traveler from Italy reported today the Germans were moving entire arms and war material plants from northern Italy to central Germany together with thousands of workers in an effort to keep the factories operating.

This informant said German production experts considered it more efficient to dismantle factories and transport them to Germany than to provide coal and raw materials to Italy.

Italians in Germany were estimated at a half million while the total of foreign workers were given as 3,000,000.

Another report from inside Europe said Marshal Siegmund List, who directed the German Balkan campaign, now has another army concentrated behind the eastern front near Moscow for a drive soon aimed toward the Soviet capital.

"Now, girls, CHARGE! Pretend we're in a bargain basement!"

A prized item in the personal music library of Eugene Smart, Mansfield music teacher, is an arrangement of a once-popular ballad, "Just Once Again." The arrangement was scored some 15 or 20 years ago by the now-famous composer Ferde Grofe and was included in the library of Orchestra Leader Paul Whiteman. Smart acquired the original musical manuscript from Whiteman and has used it in a number of his concerts.

At least one Mansfield voter is so accustomed to seeing the name of City Auditor Paul L. Kelley on an election ballot, that he wondered today why Kelley's name didn't appear for the Democratic primary. Kelley got a telephone call this morning from a voter who asked the auditor "aren't you running?" It was easy to explain. There are no primaries today for city offices.

Business picked up at the marriage license bureau in the Richland county courthouse yesterday when six couples applied for licenses. This indicated that the fall wedding season is at hand after a month's lull when only a little better than one license was isued each day. Thirty-five licenses were issued in July against almost twice that number in June.

Several Mansfield voters who put off transferring before the July 13 deadline went to the polls today to find that they couldn't vote. A number of them called the election board headquarters to protest, but they were told that they will have to wait until the November election to cast their ballots if they changed addresses and neglected to report it to the board. The right to move at the last minute and still be qualified to vote is reserved this year for the men in the armed services. The new registration and transfer period will open Aug. 21.

O. S. MYERS DIES

Lifelong Mansfield Resident To Be Buried Thursday.

Owen Snyder Myers, 77, lifelong resident of Mansfield, died last night at his home on Millsboro road following a lingering illness. He was born in Mansfield July 12, 1865.

He was a painting contractor for a number of years and later a carpenter by trade, retiring a few years ago.

Surviving are his widow, Amanda Mitchell Myers; three sons, Clyde L. Myers of Mansfield, Kenneth E. Myers of Greenfield, Mass., and Russell G. Myers of Anglewood, Cal.; two sisters, Mrs. William Zerby of Mansfield and Mrs. Anita McGrath of Columbus; two brothers, Arthur Myers of Butler, Pa., and Edwin Myers of Newark, O. Two grandchildren also survive.

The body is at the family residence and will remain there until noon Thursday when it will be removed to the Finefrock Funeral home for services at 2 p. m. Thursday with Rev. Grover E. Sweyer, pastor of First Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

ACTS TO KEEP STEADY FLOW OF MATERIALS

150 Complaints Investigated, Reports Heard 1,000 Shops May Close.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The threat of shutdowns of war plants because of raw materials shortages reached the point today that war production officials considered establishing a new section to deal specifically with complaints.

It was learned that the WPB had investigated some 150 complaints made by firms with materials shortages, and relief was granted many. But others, it was said, were so severe that no immediate remedy seemed possible.

To keep in close touch with the problem, officials were considering a plan for obtaining daily reports from the army, navy and maritime commission.

The WPB labor policy committee, an advisory group of labor leaders, asked WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson for information on plants closing down and said it feared as many as 1,000 plants might eventually be idle.

WPB officials said that some of the shutdowns or slowdowns were necessary to keep war production balanced. They said, for example, that ammunition lines might in some cases be abandoned to allow copper to be used in other war products.

Lack of fabricating facilities, excessive inventories and difficulties in properly scheduling producton were given as additional reasons for slowing war production. A WPB spokesman said that lack of rolling mill capacity had kept down the production of steel plates for ships, but that an increased production might have unbalanced the entire program.

STOP WAR PLANT WORK

CLEVELAND —(AP)— A work stoppage by 4,000 employes today shut down the two plants of the Cleveland Graphite Bronze company, maker of warplane parts.

William Bullock, business agent for the Mechanics Educational Society of America, said the employes had walked off the job at both plants in protest against "the company's arbitrary and iron-clad rules." He said the two factories employ 5,000, about half of them women.

Uncle Sam Seeks 125,000 Dogs To Aid Armed Forces

NEW YORK—(AP)—Uncle Sam wants 125,000 dogs for his army, navy and coast guard.

Dogs for Defense, Inc., a New York City organization with branches in all parts of the country, was named the collecting agency.

Under the new set-up, the defense group will obtain the dogs and will turn them over to the Front Royal, Va., quartermaster depot where a corps of amateur and professional trainers from the army remount service will school them in their military duties.

Untrained dogs as well as trained ones will be accepted.

With the armed forces they will be used as sentry aids, messengers and in similar capacities. Some, however, might find use as watch dogs at defense plants.

OPENS INQUIRY IN PLOT STORY

Army Checks On 'Arrows In Field' Release.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The War Department today said that an investigation is being made into the release of a story at Mitchell Field, New York, last Sunday which announced the discovery of signs alleged to be pointing to important defense installations.

The War Department announced that Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the eastern defense command, is directing the investigation and that "he will take appropriate action."

The department, in announcing the investigation, said the story "may be untrue."

MORE DRASTIC

OPA Cuts Down on Eligibilities For New Bicycles.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The office of price administration today ordered more drastic restrictions on rationing of new bicycles after Aug. 15, cutting the lists of eligible persons to those contributing directly to the war effort or to essential occupations.

Previously anyone "engaged in a gainful occupation" was eligible. The action was taken after the war production board ordered all bicycle manufacturing stopped by the end of August.

DRAG FOR BODY

Police Find Suicide Note In Car Parked By Bridge.

DAYTON —(INS)— Police today dragged a half-mile stretch of the Mad river in an effort to locate the body of Thomas E. Dye, 58, who is believed to have drowned in the stream. Dye's car was found parked under a bridge and a note said "you will find my body in the river."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, AUGUST 11, 1942.

Not too late yet—if you haven't already voted.

Unheard remark: "I always enjoy a picnic because there are no flies or mosquitoes around."

People who note police activity against the numbers racket in other Ohio cities wonder why it is allowed to run full swing here.

Three Critical Months Ahead

ALMOST three months will elapse between today's primaries and the November election.

This will be a dangerous period, not only because of the present crucial war situation but also because of the likelihood that pre-election politics will delay congressional matters that should be speeded—as, for instance, ceilings on wages and farm prices, enactment of an adequate tax law, repeal of the silver purchase act, and the like.

It will be in the campaigning of congressmen for re-election that politics will be most in evidence, insofar as Ohio is concerned, as no senator is to be elected here this year.

All will express themselves as wholeheartedly in favor of an all-out war effort, regardless of pre-Pearl Harbor attitude, but, in the main, they will probably continue to shy away from any legislation that might be resented by any considerable voting block, such as wage and farm price restrictions, stopping the purchase of domestic silver at double its actual value, providing for a federal sales tax and reducing the age minimum for selective service induction.

Warnings are being sounded on all sides, from authoritative sources, that this is a real war—the most merciless and destructive in world history—and that, to date, the United Nations are losing it.

Only a few days ago, Leland Stowe, famous war correspondent, writing from Moscow, said: "It is time to face the facts. The hour-glass of the Anglo-American democracies is lower than it has ever been since the Declaration of Independence. Both the United States and Britain can lose the war in the next 40 days. In any case both the United States and Britain are now in immediate danger of losing this war."

Recent events have indicated near approach of enemy attacks on east and west coasts and the war is not nearly as far away as it may seem to some people — including political-minded congressmen.

The end of a forty-day period will come before election. Hitler and his Axis associates will not allow "time out" for politics.

Merrily They Speed Along

OPTIMISM similar to that expressed in the once popular song, "It ain't goin' rain no mo'," is being displayed by hundreds of speeding motorists who can't be made to realize that they are probably using the last tires they will be able to get until quite awhile after the war ends.

A modern Rip Van Winkle, awakening after even a one-year nap and taking a look at traffic around Mansfield Sunday afternoon, wouldn't have suspected that the nation is at war and that there is a serious rubber shortage in this country, with no relief in sight.

The plea of federal and state authorities, asking that speed be kept down to 40 miles an hour on the highways is being quite generally ignored, despite the warning that driving at higher speed will result in forfeiture of priority rights by persons otherwise entitled to new tires or retreads.

Ohio law authorizes top speed of 50 miles an hour, outside of cities, villages and other restricted zones, but the 40-mile limit is advised to save tires and gasoline.

Only a small percentage of the drivers who not only exceed the 40-mile speed but who also pass the 50-mile limit are apprehended by highway patrolmen, else there would have been several hundred arrests on Route 42 (Ashland road) within five miles of Mansfield Sunday afternoon.

"Personal liberty" is shown to considerable disadvantage when it is stretched to include an assumed right to travel on public highways at break-neck speed and to burn up irreplaceable tires.

Poland Under Nazi Rule

AN AMERICAN citizen who recently returned from Poland tells something about living conditions in that country, under Nazi rule. He says:

"If a civilian has a well-to-do appearance, looks well-fed and has well-soled shoes, the Poles know immediately he is a German. If he is shabby, of sallow complexion with sunken cheeks, they know he is a Pole.

"The contrast is nowhere sharper than on the streets of bomb-battered Warsaw, where at all hours you can see the haunting faces of half-starved Poles as they walk aimlessly through the streets of what was once their proud capital."

Not a nice way for the Poles to live—if it can be called living—in their own country.

Ask USO Recognition

BOYS of the merchant marine want to know why they're not considered eligible to get the benefit of the USO.

It seems that no one not in uniform is allowed in the USO clubs. But the boy who sails on the boat that carries supplies to the troops overseas also risks his life. Surely he is serving his country in war, and serving it importantly.

Couldn't these men be given arm bands that would be recognized? Old sailors who do not care for such entertainment as is furnished the boys of the fighting forces would not be likely to ask admission, but the boys of the same ages as the soldiers and sailors for whom the service clubs are maintained are just such boys as these others.

Americans No Longer Provincial

THE WORLD is widening for Americans. Now it is the Gold Coast on the western shores of Africa, according to an announcement from London, which is seeing our aviators. This brings to 40 the total of American army and navy bases outside the continental United States. These range from Iceland to East and West Africa, from Ireland to New Guinea, from the Aleutian Islands to New Zealand.

Americans used to be accused of provincialism. There is now no part of the world which does not concern the United States.

Can 'Go Broke', But Not Bankrupt

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

ASSERTIONS that we're headed into national bankruptcy are under attack in numerous "letters to the editor" from newspaper readers throughout the country, on the ground that they are deliberately intended by anti-war folk, who write them, to undermine our morale.

Whether or not these communications' authors are disloyal, it is not hard to demonstrate that they are inaccurate.

An individual is bankrupt if he owes to other individuals more than he can pay. He can be "flat broke" on his own personal account, but he is not bankrupt unless he has outstanding claims against him in others' hands.

Speaking of us collectively, as Americans, we can spend all we have and find ourselves nationally "strapped" but it won't be bankruptcy.

A nation is just like an individual. If it spends itself down to, and including, its last cent, it is "busted" but is not actually "in the hole" (a bankrupt country) unless it has borrowed, too.

"Ah," wail the pessimists, "but look where we're borrowing now!"

Sure enough, but we are borrowing from ourselves. We are nationally in the position of a guy who borrows his own dough from his right-hand pants pocket to supply his left-hand pocket with cash to spend from that side.

The individual referred to isn't bankrupt on the strength of what he owes to himself. he hasn't got a lot of creditors hollering for more.

U. S. the Creditor.

And Uncle Sam is doing all the lending (lease-lending) this time. That we will ever be able to effect any collections isn't a particularly good bet and I don't imagine he will try very hard. I don't believe it will be at all well worth his while to do so—if it isn't seditious to make such a remark in the present emergency. He won't be the bankrupt of the international aggregation, anyway.

The chaps who pooh-pooh the idea of a darned unpleasant post-war period seem to me, however, to be overlooking one important consideration.

Let's get back to the individual again.

A man works like sixty for a terms of years, producing and saving up life's necessities and comforts to last him on into his old age. Then he's attacked by some hoodlum who compels him to blow in his entire wad in defense of what's left for himself and his progeny.

Isn't it going to make him ache while he survives—and his descendants, too, for awhile afterward?

He naturally wants to exterminate the hoodlum. There's a certain amount of satisfaction in that. Nevertheless, there's no sense in telling him that he's a seditionmonger for recognizing it.

Preventive Measures.

This war has been characterized by an unprecedented number of anticipatory measures to cushion the inevitable post-war letdown. How effectively they will do it remains to be seen. They never have been tried before—until after the crash.

It isn't logical, though, to assume that ANYTHING can cushion a fall from the moon without an appreciable plunk.

The NRA tried it the last time, but that was a post-morten outfit.

Leon Henderson is engaged with preventive measures.

They haven't had their test, either.

If Leon succeeds in getting away with his stunt, he will be accorded the medal for all history.

It won't be altogether a good thing, at that.

It will imply that countries can fight wars and survive them economically.

Perhaps it would be better to have the wars accepted as all-around suicide.

Listen World!

Always Right Time

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WE'RE always waiting for "the right time"—. The right time to tackle that new venture. The right time to explain that old mistake. Wipe out that old feud. The right time to call on that new neighbor. Or read that new book. Or stop that bad habit. Or strike out into a new way of life.

Always waiting. Always promising ourselves we'll do it tomorrow when "things line up just right." Always planning to put our lives in order, dreaming of the happiness and pride we'll know "when we get around to it." Yet, not once in a thousand times do we ever get around to it. And why not?

BECAUSE THERE NEVER IS AN EXACTLY RIGHT TIME FOR DOING ANYTHING.

There never is a time free from obligations and interruptions and contrary moods. There never is a time when life won't pluck at you from a dozen different directions, cluttering your mind, wearying your spirit. It doesn't matter how wise you are, how rich or famous or powerful. You'll never be free from the common handicaps which bind us all.

"And yet," you say, "some people do accomplish what they plan. They get things done in spite of hindrances. Is it because they are especially lucky or have some peculiar knack?

No, it isn't. They're no more lucky than you are; they have no tricks which you can't learn. They have simply discovered two simple facts:

FIRST, THERE'S NEVER A PERFECTLY RIGHT TIME TO DO ANYTHING.

AND, IT'S ALWAYS THE RIGHT TIME TO OBEY ANY FINE, CONSTRUCTIVE IMPULSE.

And the people who get things done in this world aren't the brilliant schemers, the exalted dreamers, the sentimental yearners. They are the practical humans who push right along and do what needs doing as fast as it comes their way. Interruptions? They have them constantly. Disorder? It's a pain in their neck as it is in yours. Confusion . . . bewilderment . . . exasperation . . . they block their way as they do yours.

BUT THE PEOPLE WHO GET THINGS DONE REFUSE TO BE STOPPED.

They don't waste any time in wishful thinking, in regretting yesterday or dreaming about tomorrow. They live their lives—now. They do the job they want to do when it's ready for the doing. They may not do it as well as they'd like to. But they can't afford to fuss and fret or coddle their own pride. They can't afford moods. They go along headlong when and as they can—and they make the schedule.

That's the secret of success. And it's swell advice, even if I can't follow it myself. But maybe you can. That's why I'm handing it along.

Allied Attack In Solomon Islands Shows Strength In Pacific Gaining

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

THE AMERICAN ATTACK on the Japanese in the Solomon islands indicates greater Allied strength in the southwestern Pacific than some pessimists had supposed. It tends to offset the impression of a lack of offensive power, arising from recent Japanese gains in the New Guinea area and by reports from Australia concerning the extent of military aid sent there by the United States.

While reports of the Solomon battle are necessarily extremely meager, two things stand out about it. One is that the attack is no mere skirmish but was made in great force.

The other is that the attack was not forced on us but is of our own choosing. For the first time since Pearl Harbor, we have taken the initiative from the Japanese on a big scale.

It is significant that our tacticians in the Pacific have accepted the admitted risk of going out against Japanese land-based bombers. The actions of the Coral sea and Midway island in which the Japanese, on the offensive, suffered so heavily, drove home a powerful lesson in that report.

After Midway we were not prepared to follow up the advantage gained there. Our navy heads did not care to risk the losses in carriers and other fleet units which might have been sustained in pressing forward to Wake or the Marshall islands.

The purpose of the attack presumably either is to drive the Japanese out of the Solomons or to weaken them so that any further expansion southward or toward Australia would be delayed. The Coral sea battle set the Japanese back on their heels for at least two months, and if it had not been fought, they might by now have been in New Caledonia or even New Zealand.

Since the Coral sea defeat, the Japanese have regrouped their forces and for some time now American military men have been expecting a thrust southward to the Hebrides and New Caledonia. The object would be to drive the American forces of occupation from New Caledonia and get an important base from which to harry our communications lines to Australia.

If this move has been frustrated, the present battle will have been an operation of great consequence, despite losses which may have been sustained.

It is possible, of course, that the Japanese had intended to move southwestward on Australia from the Solomons, in connection with a determined thrust from New Guinea and adjacent islands. In either case, however, the action relates directly to Australia and is equally important.

WASHINGTON—From the Capital Warfront:

Alexei Tolstoy, who bears a name that has been great in Russian literature for several generations, doesn't mince words when he writes in the Soviet Embassy Information Bulletin: "Kill the beast! That is your sacred law. . . . Concentrate all your strength to smite the enemy to the very heart; learn to kill him with the full fervor of hatred. To wipe out Fascism is essential to freedom and happiness. To kill the enemy is your sacred duty to civilization. Cherish your hatred for the enemy. Be proud of it—it is the banner of your victory."

Now you know why Hitler has found the Russians hard to crack on the eastern front.

Davis said that he asked this: "On behalf of the people of the United States, and on behalf of the War Department, the Navy Department, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Treasury Department, the Office of Civilian Defense, and the Office of War Information."

As far as "on behalf ofs" go, that's what we call swinging in the groove.

Unexpected Success

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — When "Angel Street," the Broadway mystery melodrama opened, the Shuberts — who owned the theater where it played—were so skeptical of its future that they refused to order more than three sets of tickets...figuring it would open on a Friday and fold over the week-end....Tickets cost a lot of money, and they didn't want to be suckers for what they considered a sure turkey.

However, the play was such a success that the producers had to put in a hurry call to the printer —who was on vacation—for more tickets. "Angel Street" has just passed 300 performances, and the ticket-printer is still on call.

Human and Machine Energy.

Editor News-Journal:

Subsequent to the discovery of America, the early settlers depended on human energy for subsistence and goods, but gradually educational evolution, by technicians, introduced the machines capable of supplementing man power more efficiently and of multiplied proportion.

Today the direct energy from gas, coal, oil and falling water produce 98 per cent of all energy, utilized in the production of subsistence and goods throughout North America. Visualize now, if you can, the sweat, toil, and scarcity of essentials on simply producing articles of subsistence and primitive equipment for the home, travel, and pleasure by human energy.

The history of our evolution, as made by man himself, has each year greatly reduced the necessity of human energy, causing smaller payrolls, less purchasing power and increasing poverty. Thus a super abundance of subsistence and goods of the highest quality for every person with a four-hour day and a four-day week, for adults up to 45 years old, is the objective of our technicians.

Technocracy is a non-profit and non-political organization based on a unique scientific approach to America's economic and social problems and as such, it has been submitted to the president of the U. S. and to congressmen for acceptance and adoption.

Technocracy is based on natural law from which there can be no retreat and it guarantees freedom from the money changers by establishing equality and therefore, challenges any other post-war plan.

Poor Honey Crop

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

"I SEE you've put the supers on your hives," I said to a veteran bee man. "How is the honey crop this summer?"

He waved his hand toward a row of bee hives and smiled wryly. "I put the supers on just in case the weather'd clear up for a week or ten days. So far, 'tasn't done that, since April. The fruit blooms, the dandelions and early wild flowers and white clover—even the alfalfa, sweet clover and basswood blooms, are mostly past. About all that's left is the buckwheat—and that'll be very little. There won't be much of a honey crop in Ohio, anywhere.

"You see"—and he pulled a stray low alsike clover from the grass — "this doesn't have any nectar now. The rain and dew have washed it out clean. It takes time to start it flowing again. Second crop red clover, milk weed and forest flowers are almost dry. Oh, yes, there's bees on 'em, but they don't get more'n enough to live on. Last year this time, them supers were nearly all full. This year I'll be lucky if I don't have to feed the colonies all winter.

"And that ain't the worst! Bee keepin's only a hobby with me, but when it's a lean honey year, I've noticed they get sick easier. Haven't had any "foul brood" in mine for three years—but I'm suspectin' that third colony from the left. I notice they're dwindlin' and that's a bad sign. I can't persuade myself to open it up and look—just waitin' for the state bee inspector to come along and pass sentence.

"The wild bee trees and the uninspected hives are a dangerous thing," he declared. "A chain's no stronger than its weakest link—and this whole section will have to get clear of disease before any honey producer'll be real successful. Honey won't be an economical substitute for sugar this year. When state inspection of hives is compulsory, I guess we can produce honey at a profit anywhere in the state—most seasons."

MOONHOLLOW + + +

By Maurice DeKobra and Jessie Ernst

Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER XXV

Audrey was in her room when a car rode up the drive. She looked out. She stared in amazement. It was Oliver! The butler she had discharged from Moonhollow was parking a yellow, streamlined roadster. She went to the head of the stairs. He did not ring, but entered with his own latch key, and swung open the library door, very much at home.

Morley was enjoying a pipe. He was comfortably esconced in a plump library chair blowing hazy puffs of aromatic smoke. The smoke made little figures — Audrey's face, his own, castles in the air. Then a snide voice shattered his blissful reverie. He looked up, blinked his eyes. There, big as life and twice as bad, was Oliver —a lush grin spread over his usually blank physiognomy.

"Where the devil did you come from?" he gasped. "And why are you here?"

Oliver grinned. He spoke very loudly:

"Well, Clifford, I'm bringing you the sweetest bit of good news in the world! You don't have to marry Audrey after all! We are richer than she is! We've struck it at the Double Jackpot—ore as rich as pie! We're in the money again, pal . . . The new vein is right in the center of our claim. The assay of the new gold runs a thousand a ton. We got at least ten million dollars in our pockets. Ten million bucks! Hot dogs!"

"Damnation!" Audrey heard Morley curse. "No, no. You liar, it's one of your gags!" he blared. "It's impossible!"

"Nothings impossile any more, pal. We've got what we're after! We're rich again!"

There was a pregnant silence. Then Oliver's voice rose again, sharp, piercing.

"I'm not kidding. We hit the Jackpot, and there's more dough in it than ever. For God's sake, Cliff, wake up! What's the matter with you Don't you hear me? The whole damn world is ours again. You didn't want to marry Audrey. It's okay with me now. Kick her out. Speak, damn you!" Oliver shook Morley's body vigorously.

Morley shoved Oliver off. With the sleeve of his right arm he wiped the sweat from his forehead. He frowned, and the left corner of his lower lip was pulled down in half a sneer; his eyes were glazed.

"I gave the mine away . . . gave it away for a buck! What a fool I've been!"

"Like hell you gave it away—you double-crossing jerk! You mean you sold me out? Someone told you about the strike before I got here!" Oliver caught Morley's throat between his heavy-knotted crooked fingers.

"Let go of me; you're choking me," Morley gasped. "Why should I fake now!"

"Who did you give it to?" Oliver loosened his grip enough to let Morley speak. "Who?"

"I gave the mine to Audrey."

"You gave the mine to Audrey?" Oliver stepped back in astonishment at Morley's information. "What for? Ain't half of it mine?"

"Close the door, butler. And shut your trap. Audrey's in the house. You're not in the pen talking to a bunch of convicts. And remember this: I'm the brains of our outfit, and what I do, goes. One more revision to type, and you and I walk in different directions. You still belong in the jungle!"

Morley arose, lighted a cigaret, blew smoke in Oliver's face, then poured himself a liberal helping of whiskey.

Oliver watched him without uttering a sound. But like a cat, seeing the light after a long spell in the dark, his pupils narrowed, and his face lost all expression while awaiting a chance to spring.

"My humble apologies, Governor, for losing my temper," Oliver muttered. His face was blotched with red and grey; his fixed eyes grew harder.

"Always remember when you talk to me you don't have to shout like a fish peddler!" Morley leaned against the chair twirling his Phi Beta Kappa key. "I'm not a dollar player like you, who waits for aces back to back."

Morley was like a lion tamer who snaps his whip and watches his brute fall back and cower. It was what Oliver did. He had become abject, starchless. Morley was confident now. He felt sure that Oliver, petty forger and ex-convict, was subdued.

"By God, Alvin, you're still an amateur, aren't you? After all we've gone through together!"

Oliver give a mild snarl, twisting his hands as though Morley's throat was between them.

Morley watched and smiled. "Once you realize it, you'll be more helpful to me. You're not brainy enough. You'd still be in the second-story racket, or forging your name on five-dollar relief checks, if I hadn't stepped into your life."

"I was doing all right," Oliver said truculently.

"Now you're doing better, you're in the big league and going places with me."

"A hell of an initiation fee you're asking me to pay, five million bucks."

"You're not going to pay it. So shut up!"

"Gawd, governor, I'm glad to hear you say that. You're a cool one! What's the new set-up?"

"I'll tell you when I'm ready to!"

Morley's lips were tight. Oliver's remark about coolness made him smirk. He considered himself poker-faced, but inside, Oliver's news made him suffer Chinese torture, when they tie an iron pan over a man's stomach, and under the pan, put a hungry rat. He knew in the darker recesses of his mind that he was far more dangerous than Oliver. He felt the pangs of anger and disgust at the twist in events, more than Oliver did.

He smiled artfully to himself. There always had been some means of getting the best out of things, if he wasn't afraid. Again he fingered the Phi Beta Kappa key dangling from his key ring, and wondered whether he had not opened the wrong door of life. The Phi Beta Kappa meant a great deal to him. It was symbolic. It was a challenge to Morley to prove his leadership.

He looked again at Oliver with eyes that saw him only as a pawn in his own game. How he hated the fellow. He, a Phi Beta soiling his intelligence with a shouting convict. He knew that many big shots before him had hired thugs to transact their crimes while their own person and reputation sat under shelter.

He liked being able to plod in the public eye with a cloak of genial respectability like an honor student, and then in a moment, if he desired to strip off those bindings and spring headlong into places like the Gold Nugget.

"I told you when I was laid up at Willoughby hospital that I owed the miners a lot of back pay money," Morley said. "The bank was ready to take over the whole Jackpot until its loan was paid up. Blackie told me unions were getting after the miners to quit. On top of that I owed the Colorado Drilling Company $23,000 for new pumps and drills that I had to have. I thought I gave Audrey a bagfull of bills. Should I have let the bank have the mine? Of course not."

"Why didn't you ask Audrey to buy the mine?" complained Oliver.

"Accepting a free gift didn't require the advice of her attorneys."

In Denver, Gordon hurried to Cora Leroy's Tilgham avenue apartment, rang the knob for the elevator, waited anxiously for another talk with the flame-haired dancer. "What will she be like?" he thought. "Will she still be friendly to me? Had she seen or spoken to Morley and found out Gordon had lied about his presence at the Callada road mansion?"

He pressed the buzzer to apartment 45. The door swung open, and he felt he had opened the door to a sirocco, a storm whirling with red hair and two tawny eyes.

"Well, Brad, me boy. How are ya', honey?" Cora shouted, swinging both arms around him, planting a heavy kiss on his cheek, and tousling his hair. "Hell's Bells," she screamed delightedly. She was a savage princess in black and red; flimsy organdie splattered with occasional jewels. Her arms were banded barbarically with flashing rhine stone and zircon bracelets. The upper part of her arms were bare, her skin was reddish. Her eyes were glazed slightly. Gordon was conscious of a warm sweet odor of brandy, mixed with that of sensuous perfume.

The room looked as though she har just whirled through it. A mirror was tilted against the green walls; coats and costumes tangled on the floor, huge trunks spilling their contents of clothes and satin slippers, brassieres, and chemise.

Cora spun on one foot, like a young girl, then she stood stock still before him, wiggled her shoulders.

"Part of my new routine," she said. "You like?" He nodded. She hung her head, bent her body in a half-bow. "That's the dance I did in Chi. Want to see the rest of it?"

"Not now, Cora. There's something serious I must tell you."

"My ears are fine, honey—and you can watch me. Now go right ahead. I'll show you a new step while you tell baby your troubles."

She began to toss her head from side to side, then up and down and faster. She lifted her right knee, slammed down her foot.

"I got a confession to make."

'GAY NINETIES' PERSONALITIES TO TAKE LIFE IN PLAY FRIDAY

The personalities that made headlines in the entertainment world in the "gay ninties" will come to life in the American Legion ballroom Friday night when the Children's theater workshop closes its summer season with a Gay Ninties revue embracing a melodrama, minstrel show and community sing.

This will be the only play given indoors by the group this season and it is being held at the Legion ballroom so that the atmosphere of the old time music hall, such as presided over by Tony Pastor, may be better created. John Bishop, one of the players, will appear in the role of "Pastor," the host. The program will begin at 8:30 p. m.

Directed by Harold McCuen the production will be supplemented by a group of dancers from the Ethyl Battin studio. Mrs. Battin is also training the "Floradora" number from the workshop group. Mrs. Charles Anglin is in charge of the music that will feature an array of sentimental ballads including, "Daisies Won't Tell" and "She's More to Be Pitied Than Censured."

Opening with a minstrel show the revue will introduce William Gandert as the interlocutor, Richard DiSanze and Owen Hegarty as the endmen and Ellen Bromfield in a "Swanee Strut." In the melodrama, "The Villian Still Pursued Her," Doris Alverson will play the heroine; Bettie Gibson, the mother; Owen Hegarty, the villian, and John Bishop, the hero.

Jane Hodges of the Battin Studia will impersonate Anna Held and other solo dancers will be June Imhoff, Caroline Pifer and Peggy Bayer. The latter will dance the "can can" with a miniature chorus.

Other personalities will be created as follows:

"E. H. Sothern," George Rideenour; "Julia Marlowe," Bettie Gibson; "Lillian Russell," Doris Alverson; "Lilly Langtry," Claudia Marks; "Edna Wallace Hopper," Carol Thompson; "Fay Templeton," Frankie Lane; "Blanche Ring," Joanne Soloman; "John L. Sullivan," Robert Gandert; "Carrie Nation," Virginia McMichael; "child actress," Sally Rusk; bicycle girl," Jeannie Kroegher; "General Tom Thumb," Donald DiSanze.

Floradora girls and escorts, Bettie Gibson, Sigrid Meisse, Doris Alverson, Carol Thompson, Claudia Marks, Jeannie Kroegher, William and Robert Gandert, Richard DiSanze, George Ridenour, John Bishop and Owen Hegarty.

Music hall guests and chorus, James Gandert, Phil Pendleton, Mary McConnell, Jane Rowles, Mary Anita Raklets, Robert Butterfield, Jack Welsh, Robert Klein, Jay Herbert, Edward and Charles Huston, Ned Fort, Wiliam Russell, James Rusk, John Fernyak, Natalie Carr, Nancy Quinn, Joyann Herbert, Judy Maxwell, June Klein, Joanne Peppard, Antina Vaneff and Marion Edle.

"Can Can" chorus, Carol Ann Sweet, Gilda May White, Marcia Fay Wagenhalls, Ruth Sweet, Nancy Harbaugh, Sally Stoodt, Jan Chilton and Sally Lou Zeger.

ORDER LIFTED

Dr. Wild Says Lucas Won't Have to Boil Water.

The order to boil all drinking water which was placed on Lucas residents on July 7 when it was learned that the village water system was contaminated was lifted yesterday by Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner.

The order was given when a test at the state health laboratory showed that construction work on the improvement of the water system was causing the water to be contaminated.

Water was boiled and village officers installed a chlorinating system. Dr. Wild said today that recent tests showed there is no longer a need for boiling water but that chlorination will be continued indefinitely.

PIGEONS WON'T USE ROOST

NEW ORLEANS — (U.P.) — The city has demolished a housing project because nobody would live in it. It was a pigeon roost designed to lure pigeons from the eaves of city hall to an adjoining park. But the pigeons—once ejected by Roman candles and another time forcibly placed in the new roost—flew back to the favored eaves every time.

How to get a lot more miles from every gallon of gasoline

IT'S REALLY PRETTY SIMPLE to squeeze extra mileage out of your gasoline. All it takes is a little extra care in your driving—a few regular attentions to your car. For details, see below.

Even if you only do a few of these things you'll notice a big improvement. And if you do all of them—and keep doing them—you'll likely find you're able to go just as far on 3 or 4 gallons as you now go on 5!

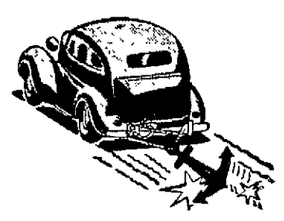
What to do about YOUR CAR

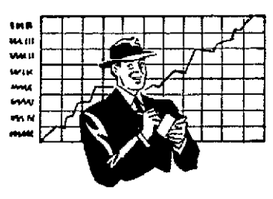
GET UP TO 10% more miles-per-gallon by such a simple thing as keeping spark plugs clean! Dirty, worn plugs can easily waste as much as 1 gallon out of every 10.

UNCLOG THE PORES of your air filter. A dirty air filter acts as a choke —wastes a whale of a lot of gas. Should be cleaned every 1,000 to 2,000 miles.

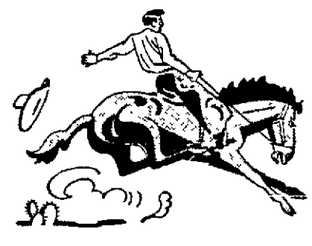


ELIMINATE THE EXTRA DRAG that needless friction puts on your car's motor. Chassis lubrication and oil changes every 1,000 miles will cut away that friction "anchor."

What to do about YOUR DRIVING



WRITE YOUR OWN TICKET on the biggest single gas-saver of all—slower driving! At 50 you use almost 25% more gas per mile than at 30 —at 60, almost 50% more! The slower you drive the more you save —it's up to you.

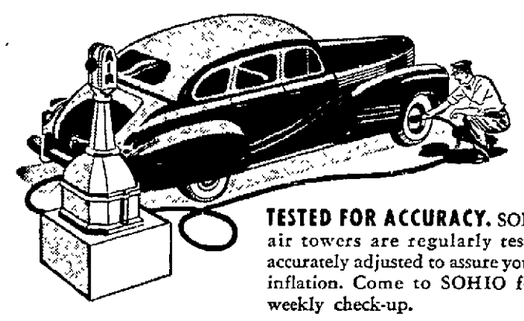


DON'T BE A "COWBOY." Starting like a flash and stopping "on a dime" is fun—sure—but, man, how it eats up the gas! Take it easy and you'll get a lot more miles of useful driving.

STEADY DOES IT. "Pumping" the accelerator—constant speeding up and slowing down—is like using a fire hose to fill a thimble. You lose more than you use!

What to do about TIRE INFLATION

ONCE EVERY WEEK, sure, check your tires and keep them at the recommended pressure. Driving on soft tires is like driving through mud —takes extra power and wastes gas!



TESTED FOR ACCURACY. SOHIO free air towers are regularly tested and accurately adjusted to assure you correct inflation. Come to SOHIO for your weekly check-up.

What to do about GASOLINE

Use Ohio's Long-Mileage favorite!...

SOHIO'S experienced servicemen, up-to-the-minute equipment and high-quality products can help you get better performance and mileage from your car. Use them regularly—start today!

DOUBLE RING SERVICE PERFORMED AT CHURCH

Ceremony Sunday Afternoon Unites Ruth Bollman and Sergt. John F. Baki; Reception Held at Linn Home.

NOW on a short wedding trip are Sergt. and Mrs. John F. Baki. Their marriage was an event of Sunday afternoon at St. Paul's Lutheran church. The bride is the former Miss Ruth Bollman, 107 Ford street, daughter of Oscar Bollman, 292 Newman street. Sergeant Baki is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Baki, 115 Gibson avenue. Rev. H. L. Gilbert, pastor of the church, performed the double ring ceremony at 2:15 p. m.

Relatives and friends attending the open church service were shown to their places by Joseph Morganstern and Peter Rebel, brothers-in-law of the bride. Attractive altar decorations consisted of white gladioli and asters in altar vases, ferns, palms, beauty baskets of white gladioli and tapers in two seven-branch candelabra.

Preceding the exchange of vows, a program of nuptial music was presented by O. Leo Seybold, organist, and Mrs. Max Dye, vocalist. Mr. Seybold played "Romance," by Schubert, "Berceuse," by Goddard, and the traditional wedding marches. Solos by Mrs. Dye were "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "I Love You Truly." Mr. Bollman gave his daughter in marriage.

For her wedding, the new Mrs. Baki was attired in a dark sheer street length dress trimmed with flesh colored pleated chiffon and lace. She had matching accessories and her corsage was a purple orchid. A pearl necklace, gift of the bridegroom, was the bride's only jewelry. Miss Betty Baki, sister of the bridegroom and sorority sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. With her aqua dress she wore brown accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Baki appeared at her son's wedding in a black and white print dress with matching accessories. Her flowers were gardenias.

Horace L. Francis of Cardington, friend of Sergeant Baki, served as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception for 125 guests was held at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Linn, 428 Shepard road. The reception was given by the bride's sisters, Mrs. Peter Rebel and Mrs. Joseph T. Morganstern. Mrs. Baki, mother of the bridegroom, and Miss Maxine Rimmer, sorority sister of the former Miss Bollman, presided at the table from which refreshments were served. Decorations included a wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple, red, white and blue flowers and small flags.

Both Sergeant and Mrs. Baki are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school. Before entering the service he was employed at the Earnshaw Sheet Metal Works. He is now in the Army Air Corps, stationed at Sheppard Field, Wichita Falls, Tex. His bride is a member of Beta Kappa Tau sorority and is secretary to the purchasing agent for the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Mrs. Baki will continue to make her home with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs Morganstern, 107 Ford street, while her husband is in the service He will return to Texas on Thursday.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams of Cleveland, Mrs. Luvilla Jones of Huntington Park, Calif, and Marion Scott of Bellefontaine

Red Cross Sewing To Be Completed By Presidents

Twelve members of the Past Presidents' club, Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40, Daughters of Union Veterans, gathered in Memorial hall at 2:30 yesterday afternoon to do sewing on their Red Cross kits. It was announced that these will be the last kits made by the group, as other arrangements for further service are being made.

Dinner was served at 6 o'clock at a table attractively decorated with late summer flowers. Hostesses were Mrs. Alice Oster and Mrs. Mary Johnson. Mrs. Johnson also led the devotions. The business session was called by Mrs. Oster, president. Plans were made for the next meeting, Sept. 14, at which time Mrs. Henrietta Sherman and Miss Harriet Beck will be hostesses.

The group accepted a desk flag and new flag posts presented to them by Mrs. Allie Garrett. A card was read from Mrs. Tom Taylor, who has been confined with illness and now says that she is improving.

Hats Go Gay For Autumn Season

Left, double-brimmed, head-fitting hat; right, turquoise chenille chapeau; center, Scotch green model.

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer

Fashionable heads will be bright heads this season. Priority beiges and grays, which make up in chic what they spare in war essential dyes, appeared with gay contrasts of emerald and red in the fall collection.

Exotic shades ranged from Dalmation through cornflower blue, and from mauve through American beauty. Black held its own in luxurious materials or was combined with other hues. In every case the simple silhouette of 1942 was spotlighted by face-focusing color.

The milliners made the most of the fact that basic hat materials, such as felt, have been rejected as far as the war effort is concerned. The resulting silhouette is stimulating, new and designed to fill the American woman's wartime need for well-integrated charm, as well as the demands of her patriotic L-85 silhouette.

Crowns are definitely on the up and up, telescoped, softly draped or sculptured. They are also head-fitting for rubber conservation and coiffure preservation. Medium to large brims were divertingly petaled, cloche-shaped or scooped. In fact, the variations were practically endless as long as they made an intriguing frame for the face.

Small Hats Alluring.

Little hats for big occasions, after five, were just as alluring as the larger models. Like the less formal originals, these small but striking hats were draped to repeat the lines of the new dresses. Most of them tilted forward and were snugly fitted at the back of the head. The sleek and slender look, achieved by tapered crowns among the larger models, was carried through in the narrow lines of the cocktail group, to complement the soignee, upswept hairdo.

The three styles shown in the above photographs give an idea of the smartness and variety of the selections for autumn.

The small hat tilted forward over the brow was designed by Sally Victor It is ideal for the furlough bride, being made of turquoise chenille and matched to a generous muff. Numdi feathers spray from the telescope crown.

The little Scotch hat is made of green wool and has a high crown. It is trimmed and appliqued with oak leaves which are stitched in red to match the cording. It was created by Ann Koppelman.

The third hat features many gay fall colors. It is a double-brimmed, head-fitting hat by John Frederics. The priority beige, gray-brown, scarlet and steppe green of the hat are matched in the bright chiffon scarves tied ascot fashion at the neck.

Surprise Party Given In Honor Of Mrs. Keffer

A pleasant surprise to Mrs. Harold B. Keffer, the former Ruth Funston, was the party given in her honor last evening by her mother, Mrs. W. G. Funston, 125 Poplar street. Associate hostesses were Mrs. Lester Funston of Osborn and Miss Urith Funston, sister-in-law and sister of the bride.

The evening was spent playing bunco. Prizes were won by the honoree, Mrs. Edgar Schaus and Mrs. John Funston. Mrs. Schaus and Mrs. Funston presented their awards to Mrs. Keffer. Later in the evening the bride was led to another room where the shower gifts of silverware had been arranged on a white linen covered table. The hostesses presented Mrs. Keffer with a walnut cabinet for the silverware.

Refreshments were served at small tables decorated with red, white and blue candles. There was a bouquet of gladioli and sweet peas on the mantle.

Legion Auxiliary Meets Monday

Advancement of the colors, the pledge of allegiance and singing of the national anthem opened the meeting of the American Legion auxiliary which was held last evening at the Legion home. Mrs. Marie Castor, president, conducted the meeting. Reports of standing committees were given.

Mrs. Ruth Kale, child welfare chairman, told about clothing and money that had been given to two needy families. Mrs. Castor and Mrs. Marie Dickson will be delegates to the convention which will be held at Canton on Aug. 16, 17 and 18. A social meeting will be held on Aug. 24. Seventy-five were present for the family picnic which was held recently at South park.

Mrs. Wayde Boyce Entertains Club

The Hope club held a meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Wayde Boyce, 399 West Fifth street, with 11 members present. Business was conducted by Mrs. C. E. Flockencier, during which time each member bought war savings stamps.

High scores for the bingo game went to Mrs. Charles Garnett and Mrs. Thomas Gregg. Lunch was served at a long table. Next meeting will be Sept. 14 with Mrs. Fred Foss, 204 South Franklin avenue.

No, Don't Stick Your Neck Out

By BETTY CLARK

Will your neck stand the test of sticking it out for inspection? Double chins, sagging muscles and crepey throats speak louder than words in giving away a woman's age.

Hildegarde, cafe chanteuse, is concerned with the interior of her throat as a singer. But as a showman she is vitally interested in its outer appearance too. She explains, "A really beautiful throat is as important to a woman as a pair of deep blue eyes, a perfect hair-do or slim hips. And there's no reason for any woman to have an unattractive throat and profile."

The lovely-throated songstress uses three methods of throat care. The first is the simplest. You merely correct your posture. Your head should be held straight, and high. When you walk or sit, you should feel a pull—as though someone were lifting you by the ears.

The next method suggested by Hildegarde is exercise, and she thinks you ought to do it in private. "You can't very well go around chewing like a snap turtle in front of people. Yet chewing is wonderful for your chin. It increases muscle tone and keeps the flesh flexible." The idea is to chew with a snapping motion, releasing the jaws suddenly and then snapping them closed abruptly.

Massage is the last step. Hildegarde says it's good for the neck outline and for the skin texture. Use a tissue cream every night and smooth it on gently. Never slap the skin, and always massage the throat and chin upward so as to avoid pulling the skin down into sagging lines.

Curves Are Right, But Not Bumps

By MME. QUI VIVE

You will observe that the darlings of the stage and screen are a bit heftier than they were a few years ago. The slivered down shape has lost appeal. Time was when the skin-and-bones girl was afraid to eat a woman's-sized meal lest she take on a few extra ounces. The string-beaners were tops; the dumpling shapes were envious of them. The fashionable figure of this particular period is that of a strong, healthy, highly-energized woman of pleasing, normal proportions. Whether she is short or tall does not matter, just so lines are good. She must look as if she were able to shoulder any kind of a job.

Excess weight should be worked off. It has been done in thousands of cases, can be done by any woman who will put a rein on appetite, knuckle down to a reasonable amount of exercise. She doesn't have to starve, she doesn't have to sweat. When she rids herself of superfluous poundage she will not only feel better, but will look better, live a more active life. Lugging adipose tissue is hard work. There is an inclination to avoid activities. Many delightful outdoor sports are curtailed.

Fat is not just a surface blanket. It packs itself around the heart and other organs, slows up the functions, is a health menace.

Many a woman whose figure is quilted with adipose tissues is a hard worker. But she suffers from fatigue more quickly than the slender one. Work creates appetite; she eats foods that build fat cells. She has a wide choice of groceries that will satisfy, fill her up, but not add an ounce of weight. Elements that build the bumps and shelves are fats, sweets and starches. Of these elements she must have only the smallest amount. It won't do to cut them out entirely. If she does, the tissues of the face may soften and lines appear. Of what use the more youthful figure if the countenance looks older?

Many women who fancy they are sticking to the right diet don't realize how much fat and sugar they may be getting. Sugar and cream in tea and coffee. Generous spreading of butter on the bread. That just won't do.

The three-day liquid diet once a month is a help, and gives the digestive organs a holiday.

For breakfast have the juice of two oranges or a grapefruit, clear tea or coffee, an eggnog flavored with vanilla. The egg will supply protein.

For luncheon, sliced tomato—tomatoes are largely liquid—two slices of rye bread toasted and not buttered, cottage cheese for protein content.

For dinner, a generous serving of vegetable soup with buttermilk or unsweetened lemonade.

Tomorrow's Problem.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

THE apparently old man made quick work of his departure, and had left the restaurant almost before his waiter, patently under the influence of a munificent tip, had finished bowing him away.

"Look at what you've done to Olina and me!" Mary said. "Here we were about to shoot craps to see who would snaffle the prize, each having visions of being an old man's darling, and here you nail him and snatch him from under our very noses.

"Just a love pirate; that's our Auntie Madge," she rattled on. "Thre's one thing certain; Lina and I will never take you along as a chaperone again, will we Lina?"

"No, indeed," Lina answered mechanically. Noting that she was distinctly distrait, I wondered if anything about the bizarre old masquerader had stirred memories.

True, she paid Mary's foolery the tribute of a smile, but it was as stereotyped as Steve Redfield's laugh was hearty and genuine. He plainly was so relieved that the episode had ended without calling on him for any protective action, that his spirits were at zenith.

But Olina's were just as palably at nadir. She spoke rarely during the rest of the time we spent at the restaurant and was silent during our journey back to the hotel.

Stephen Redfield left us as we entered the elevator, and when we reached my floor Olina pleaded fatigue and went on to the top floor, where her stepfather, Philip Veritzen, owner of the Lansfield, maintained the most luxurious apartment in the hotel, for use whenever he wanted to be nearer his offices than he would be in his beautifully appointed home.

Mary waited until we had left the ears of the elevator operator behind, then broke into wondering but low-voiced comment.

"What in the world do you suppose is eating Lina?" she asked. "She's never paid any particular attention to that gazabo before, except to be amused by his antics, but ever since he ambled over to our table and kidnaped you, she's been acting as if he were a sort of masculine Medusa. His streaming white locks and beard must have scared her or hypnotized her."

"I think you're imagining things, darling," I told her. "I don't believe Olina was at all affected by that man. She's simply so fatigued she can hardly keep her eyes open. She hasn't your boundless energy and vitality, you know. You can dance all night, then get up after two hours of sleep and play tennis or picnic all day. But Olina hasn't the stamina."

Spencer Questions Mary.

Mary eyed me shrewdly as we paused at my door.

"I'd give a thin dime to know whether you're talking for publication or off the record," she said.

I did not answer that, and was relieved to find my father in the living room. I did not wish to discuss the pseudo old man with anyone else before I had reported our interview to my father, who had sponsored the assignment.

When he had greeted us, my father spoke directly to Mary.

"You are making progress?" he asked.

Her expressive eyebrows spelled worry, not serious but distinct, to me.

"Yes, I think so," she said, after a slight pause, then added: "But it's slow work."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, August 12.

THE ASTRAL AUGURIES for this day may be read as generally propitious and encouraging in all the affairs, business as well as social, domestic, affectional and in many branches of cultural activity. It may be found that superiors, employers and those in power are reday to asisst all meritorious objectives, although it would be well to give proper consideration to any matters that come up for decision.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of progress and fulfilled ambitions in both business and private life. Intellectual and cultural affairs should be under splendid impetus for development, although a certain tendency toward doubt, indecision and confusion should be taken in hand for concentration, direct action and well-organized effort. Also the incentive to substitute expediency for principle should be suppressed. In worthy aims employers, superiors and higher-ups are ready to give encouragement.

A child born on this day should be versatile and ambitious, with much intellectual and cultural talent, although disposed to attain its ends in the easiest way.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO CARDS WORTHLESS

As a generality, it is well to proceed on the assumption that no card is worthless. Though some insignificant little one may not take a trick, it may be useful for signaling or for promoting a higher card in your own hand or partner's, or for upsetting the plans of your opponents in one way or another. This is especially true of little trumps. Putting one on a trick and getting over-ruffed may prevent the other fellow from taking a discard on the card you ruff.

North had his nerve to make that jump, direct to slam, from 4-Hearts, and East had some of his own to double the contract with the heart bidder seated at his left, where the long trumps sat over him and got last whack at heart tricks. After the deal North said his bid was based partly on the fact that he did not consider his opponents strong defensive players. As it turned out, he was right.

South won the spade K with the dummy's A, raked in the club Q, A and K, discarding the spade 3, and was pleased to see the J drop. Counting West as possibly being out of trumps, in view of East's double, he now led the established club 10. Right there is where the fate of the contract rested. West did not ruff this and compel North to over-ruff. As he said later, that would have wasted his trump. Instead, he discarded a spade, whereupon the spade 6 was tossed from the dummy. Next came the diamond K, A and 5, ruffed by the heart 6 — shortening his own trumps for a later possible coup if West had held one small trump and refused to ruff that spade trick. The spade 10 was then ruffed in the dummy by the heart A, and the heart 9 led. East covered this with the 10 and the J won. The Q was then sent to the K and East had to lead from the 7-2 into the 8-3. No matter how East played his trumps, after the lead of the 9, he could get only one trick.

If West had ruffed the club 10 on the fifth trick, South would have had to lose a spade and a heart trick.

THEATERS

Crawford Comedy.

Joan Crawford has the role of a million-dollar career woman who goes on a romantic bender after she meets up with a charming but penniless gentleman in "They All Kissed the Bride," the Madison attraction. Melvyn Douglas plays opposite the star and the cast includes Roland Young, Billie Burke, Allen Jenkins and Nydia Westman. Jenkins plays Miss Crawford's partner in a jitterbug contest. Van Heflin in "Grand Central Murder," is the second picture.

Ranch Locale.

A group of girls from a swank eastern school take over a western ranch in "Heart of the Rio Grande," Gene Autry's picture at the Park. Edith Fellows appears as the precocious daughter of the rich whose only standard is money and who makes life miserable for her colleagues until she becomes instilled with a sense of sportsmanship. Smiley Burnette and Fay McKenzie are in the cast. The second picture, "The Ghost of Frankenstein," features Bela Lugosi and Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

Dramatic Story.

Another highly emotional role is played by Bette Davis in the Ritz attraction. "In This Our Life." As a woman who wouldn't stop at murder if it would satisfy her selfish desires Miss Davis as "Stanley Timberlake" brings unhappiness to all her family and friends. On the eve of her own engagement she wrecks her sister's marriage and causes a suicide. Olivia de Havilland, Dennis Morgan and George Brent top the supporting cast. "Shadows of the Underworld," with Valerie Hobson and Barry Barnes is the co-attraction.

Jungle Thriller.

"Beyond the Blue Horizon," a technicolor jungle thriller with Dorothy Lamour, clad again in a sarong, as the star, continues at the Ohio. Richard Denning, in the role of a jungle-bred lion-wrestler in a circus, Walter Abel, Helen Gilbert and Elizabeth Patterson are others in the cast. The plot presents the beautiful Miss Lamour as an heiress who is brought to the states from the jungle where she lived most of her life with a tiger and a chimpanzee as pets. When she is forced to return to the jungle to prove the validity of her claim to fortune the action starts.

Society

Picnic Held For Service Guild

Wesleyan Service guild of the Ontario Community church met last evening with Mrs. Harry Smith, Park avenue west road, for a picnic supper. Associate hostess was Mrs. Harold Strohminger. Twenty-one members and five guests attended.

Devotions entitled, "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place," were led by Mrs. Edward Beer. The discussion in charge of Miss Frances Spingel was "Planning a Church Program." Mrs. Harold Marshall, Ontario, will be hostess for the Sept. 14 meeting.

Picnic Supper Held By Monday Nighters

At 6:30 o'clock last evening, a picnic supper was enjoyed by 14 members and three guests of the Monday Nighters club. Mrs. Henry Nikolaus and Mrs. Ray Fleming were hostesses. The business session was conducted by Mrs. Ted Brickley.

Mrs. Walter Wolfe and Mrs. William Ballitch were welcomed as new members. Bingo was the diversion. On Sept. 14, Mrs. Esley Cleckner and Mrs. John Chew will be hostesses for a steak fry at the Cleckner farm on the Wooster road.

El Salvador wrote emancipation into its constitution 40 years before the United States freed its slaves.

Without Painful Backache
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills

BUCYRUS PLANT AWARDED ARMY, NAVY PENNANT

Ohio Crane Company Given Coveted Symbol For War Production.

BUCYRUS—Gold braid and brass buttons were in the spotlight Monday when Bucyrus was host to army and navy officials who came to the city to pay tribute to a Bucyrus manufacturing concern, the Ohio Crane company, which was awarded the coveted army-navy pennant for highest achievement in war production in appropriate ceremonies, Monday afternoon.

Also a distinguished guest and the principal speaker on the program was Governor John Bricker who told employes of the firm, that it was because of plants like theirs that the United Nations had met with victory in the Coral Sea battle of Midway and were able to continue their fighting in the battle of the Solomen Islands which is now in progress.

"Ohio has 1,274 such plants that are doing their part in the war effort, ranking second in the entire country in production," he said. "So long as we continue with our present unity we cannot meet with defeat," he concluded.

Capt. L. N. Moeller of the bureau of yards and docks, Chicago, made the formal presentation of the pennant which was received by the plant president, Walter J. Michael. In brief remarks, Capt. Moeller told his audience "we started out to do in months what Hitler accomplished in years. His present successes were backed by years of production."

Facsimiles of the pennant in pin form were presented to the plant's employes by H. G. Taylor of the U. S. navy. Acceptance was made by William Reinemeyer, shop superintendent and oldest employe of the company. In presenting the awards Taylor told employes, "you can look any soldier in the eye and know that you are doing your part as surely as they are doing theirs in the firing line."

The ceremonies were one of 11 such programs arraigned in various parts of the United States in which manufacturers of war materials were given recognition. Bucyrus was one of 20 concerns in the entire country and one of five in Ohio to receive the honor.

In recognition of the achievement a radio nationwide hookup was dedicated to the participating companies Sunday on which Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff, was the principal speaker.

Members of the Bucyrus high school band paraded to the Crane plant and provided music during the program. Also participating were the color guard comprised of men from the 753rd Engineer battalion. Common Pleas Judge C. U. Ahl served as master of ceremonies.

J. J. BERAN RITES ARE ARRANGED

BUCYRUS — Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 9 a. m in Holy Trinity Catholic church for Joseph J. Beran, 74, resident of Bucyrus for more than 50 years and retired W. A. Sport Podge

by REX HESS

No, Massillon hasn't passed its extra school levy yet.

And no one knows when the Massillon schools will open this fall—or whether they'll open in time to let the famous Massillon football Tigers begin their playing schedule.

The good folk of Massillon are unhappy about the whole thing, but have not yet displayed any decided inclination toward changing their mind about that levy, which has been knocked down several times since last autumn.

But Coach Elwood Kammer, successor to Bud Houghton of the navy, successor to Paul Brown of Ohio State, is not going to be caught napping. If school opens on time, he'll be ready.

Kammer not only has issued his first practice call for Sept. 1, he has sent out the following instructions to his gridders:

"Practice will be held twice daily, at 9:30 and 3:30 the first week. You are expected to be dressed, wrapped, have your conference and be ready to go on the field at this time.

"Make sure your uniform fits. You will be given a pair of canvas ankle wraps, unless you have bad ankles, and it is your duty to learn how to put them on. You must have them on at all times.

"Get yourself in shape. Run a lot. Do exercises. Kick and pass. You are expected to report in such condition that you are able to scrimmage the first day.

"Get your time planned. You must be at all practices. No one will be excused from practice. We will have only 19 practices before the first game. Make sure you know the assignments on the plays you had last spring. For our first game we must have the plays we had last spring plus some from the T and a spread.

"We were terrible last spring and it is going to take a lot of hard work on our part to correct our mistakes. No one has his position on this team cinched. The eleven best ball players we have will make the team and we do not care who they are.

"Study your schedule and you will see that it is the toughest a Massillon team has ever faced. You can't win games on what the teams of the past did. This is your battle. It's all your fight.

"Plan to forget girls. No late hours. No smoking or alcoholics of any kind. You represent Massillon, the finest football town in the country. Never let your people down.

"Your time is short. Get ready!"

* * *

Kammer may be soaking up some valuable advice from his former coaching buddies. He reports that Brown has spent several week-ends in Massillon recently, that Houghton also spent a brief furlough there, and that Bill Edwards, coach of the Detroit Lions and a Massillon product, also was a Massillon visitor for a week.

George "Red" Bird, rejected by the navy because of overage, is working hard and long to produce a greater Massillon high school band than ever before, according to reports from Tiger town.

Is Massillon broke? Don't you believe it. The band will have new uniforms this year.

Order Ban On Sale Of Racing Sheets

CHICAGO —(INS)— Chicago speculators on the probable order of finish at the race tracks throughout the country were dealt their unkindest blow today by a police order forbidding all newsstands in downtown Chicago to sell scratch sheets and racing forms.

The Daily Racing Form promptly announced it would go to court, if necessary, to fight the ban on the ground it was a daily newspaper.

TOMPKINS MEMORIAL OPENS GOSHEN TRACK

GOSHEN, N. Y.—(AP)—Goshen's Good Time park opens today with a trotting and pacing card that merely awakens the spectators for Wednesday's 17th running of the $40,000 Hambeltonian.

Today's inaugural features the $4,000 Arthur S. Tompkins Memorial which has attracted a field of 13 two-year-old trotters.

Buckeyes Seek New Laurels

Return to Columbus For A. A. U. Diving Contests.

By ROGER NELSON

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Mike Peppe and his Ohio State swimming charges were back in the home fort today with the assurance of the National A. A. U. outdoor swimming championship under their belts but determined to lengthen their 14-point advantage over second-place Yale tomorrow night in the 33-foot platform diving championships to be held at Columbus' Olympic pool.

In the three-day competition, the Buckeyes amassed 51 points to run away with team laurels and have great chances of making a complete rout of the event in the finale event tomorrow evening which was moved to the Buckeye capital because of war regulations in the east.

Although Ohioans aren't going to be treated to exhibitions by the two Hawaiian lads, Bill Smith and Keo Nakama, who dominated the action in New London, Conn., such as no other pair has ever done in the history of the A. A. U., the cream of the nation's divers eligible for competition will battle it out for the high-board supremacy.

* * *

Headlining the invading contingent of water-splashers is Sammy Lee, the Occidental college student who made a great showing in winning the three-meter title at New London, trailed by four Ohio State stars.

Miller Anderson, Ohio State sophomore-to-be was runner-up to Lee in the three-meter event and is expected to offer the chief competition in the platform, having finished runner-up to Earl Clark of Ohio State last year.

Victory in the platform will give Lee a clean sweep of the national diving titles, a feat accomplished by Clark last year which won ALB-American diving laurels for the Buckeye ace last year. Clark is now in the navy, having completed his four years at State a year ago.

* * *

Besides Anderson, the Buckeyes have valuable point-gathering material in Frank Dempsey, a perennial contender for diving laurels. Dempsey, a Cleveland lad, finished third in the New London event.

Charley Batterman, fourth behind Dempsey in the New London meet will not compete in the platform but fifth-placer Jimmy Strong will be an additional Ohio State color-bearer.

Others to be reckoned with are national junior champion Dal Stauffer who will carry the colors of Olympic pool to the platform and the University of Alabama star Johnny Simpson. Simpson was a runner-up in the platform competition a couple of years ago.

When Ohio State cinched the title at New London Sunday, it marked the second team triumph for the Bucks in the history of the event. Mike Peppe's Mermen are the only college team ever to annex the laurels and the victory establishes them as outstanding national indoor favorites in the forthcoming season.

Pitcher Pecht Wins Own Game

Maple Lake seniors came from behind to score an 8-4 victory over Johns Park yesterday in the Park Association softball league.

* * *

Hurler Pecht of Maple Lake set the hitting pace with four out of five trips, including a home run and double, while Campbell and Dials hit circuit clouts for the losers.

* * *

Blue Goose scored six runs in the third inning to break a 3-3 tie, and coasted to a 10-3 victory over John Todd park. Radio hurled a one-hit game for the winners.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—If the Dodgers get involved in any more feuds, they'll have to change the name of Ebbets Field to the "Dust-Off Bowl"...Records of the Hamletonian support the contention the favorites nearly always win trotting-horse races, but we wonder if that isn't because the folks who follow the trotters know more about horses than the frequenters of running-horse parks.

CLEANING THE CUFF

Biggest headache (but not the biggest head) in town these days belongs to Harry Markson, Mike Jacobs' publicity chief. He has three ten-rounders on Thursday's card to ballyhoo, but every time Harry writes about one fighter, the managers of the other five holler for equal consideration... Harry Mendel, the temporarily retired six-day bike race boss, reports: "The twilight-night doubleheader is a steal from the bike business, except baseball which is played outdoors, doesn't have to ventilate the joint between 4 a. m. and 6 a. m."

Indians Lose 3 At Chicago

Still Have Chance at Runner-up Position.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Having absorbed three beatings in Chicago, the Tribe returns to the wigwam tonight for a twilight-night double bill with the Detroit Tigers. And if Al Milnar and Vernon Kennedy should turn in victories, the Redskins would find themselves in second place.

* * *

Although the Indians lost to the Chisox last night, 8 to 1, they gained a half game on the Boston Red Sox, who dropped two to Washington.

* * *

Failure to hit when teammates were on the sacks caused Cleveland's defeat last night. The Indians collected 11 hits off Johnny Humphries while Chubby Dean held the Pale Hose to five.

The third inning, in which the Redskins scored their only run, was indicative of their difficulty in getting hitters home.

Roy Weatherly opened the session with a double to left, and advanced one base on Oris Hockett's high fly which fell for another double behind third base. Kenny Keltner flied out to short center, both men holding their positions, and then Weatherly scored and Hockett reached third on Jeff Heath's infield out. Les Fleming was called out on strikes to end the inning.

* * *

Chicago scored in the second on a walk, a long single and an infield out. In the fifth Dean forced in a marker by walking Wally Moses after the bags were loaded on two singles and a pass. The Chisox's third run came in the seventh session on Bob Kennedy's second single of the night, a sacrifice, an infield out and Kenny Keltner's low throw to first which permitted Kennedy to cross the plate with an unearned tally.

North Lake Boys Score Easy Win

Starting out with 12 runs in the first inning, North Lake park juniors scored in every frame yesterday to tag a 36-2 trimming on Maple Lake in the boys' softball league.

Hahn, Johns, Menke and Dent hit home runs for the winners.

In the other league tilt Johns Park juniors blanked Paul's 11-0. Thomas hit for the circuit.

Dreams of 3rd Ring Champion

Hartford Has Comer In Featherweight Boxer.

By GEORGE A. MACKIE

HARTFORD, Conn. — (Wide World)— Hartford, home of two former world's featherweight champions, has a third one in the making.

You won't find the name of Willie Pep in any of the current listings of prominent featherweight contenders, but they can't keep the 19-year-old winner of 44 consecutive pro fights out for long.

Willie's last outing, the first time he has gone more than eight rounds, was against Abe Denner, and the way he took the New England featherweight title away from the Boston boxer was like snatching junior's lollipop. Denner, though he has a spotty record, holds decisions over many top-notch featherweights, and the 12-round win boosted Pep's stock considerably.

Pep is the antithesis of his fellow-townsmen, former champions. Louis "Kid" Kaplan and Christopher "Bat" Battallino. They, Battallino, especially, were bulldog battlers who loved toe-to-toe slugging.

* * *

Pep doesn't have to slug. Extremely fast, he nails his man and slips away like a wraith. His opponents' punches land where he isn't. He punches just as fast with one hand as the other. More than one Pep foe has slipped away from Willie's left hook only to catch a solid right squarely in the whiskers the barest fraction of a second later.

He beat Johnny Compo and Joe Iannotti, considered fair-to-middlin' featherweights, without losing a single round.

His handlers have brought him along carefully. Joey Archibald, an ex-champion, and Denner, are the only "name" fighters he has met. But they figure that in less than a year he'll be ready for the best.

* * *

One thing worries them. Can Willie take it? So far, no one has been able to get close enough to him to hurt him.

* * *

Pep stands five and a half feet tall and has no trouble making the 126-pound weight limit.

He was born William Papaleo and adopted the name "Pep" in an unthinking moment during his amateur days. He wishes now he could get rid of it—it's too amateurish for a budding champ—but it sticks to him.

Ex-Champs Favored In Tourney

Defending Titlist Ties Chicago Track Record.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Three former champions were favored today as match play started in the 42nd annual women's western amateur golf tournament at the Sunset Ridge country club.

The former titlists who gained the right for another try at the western crown in yesterday's qualifying test were Mrs. Russell Mann of Omaha, Neb., the champion in 1933 and 1941; Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., the 1940 ruler; and Mrs. Harry Pressler of San Gabriel, Cal., cup winner in 1927 and 1928.

Mrs. Mann, one of the nation's top-ranked stars for a decade and a former Curtis Cup member, proved she was at the peak of her form when she won the qualifying medal from a field of 176 competitors.

* * *

The Omaha star toured the long Sunset Ridge layout in even par of 77, to tie a course record.

* * *

Mrs. Mann was a co-medalist in the western a year ago with Eleanor Dudley of Chicago, and then went on to take the championship. Miss Dudley, the 1941 National Women's Intercollegiate queen, is not competing this season.

In the feature first round match Mrs. Mann will meet Betty Jane Haemerle of St. Louis, Mo., who qualified with an 86.

Miss Jameson, who captured the national championship in 1939 and 1940 shot an 80 in yesterday's qualifier. Combined with the 79 she fired in the western open qualifier here early this season, it was sufficient to win for her a special trophy, the Marion Miley award, given in honor of the late Lexington, Ky., star.

* * *

Miss Jameson's first round opponent will be Rena Nelson of Chicago, who had an 86 in the qualifying test.

* * *

Mrs. Pressler, the far-west's lone representative in the title battle, will face Naomi Copic of Toledo, O., in the first round.

Second place in the qualifier went to Ann Casey of Mason City, Ia., with a 78. Peggy Kirk of Findlay, O., had an 87.

Blues Retain League Lead

Split Double Header With Columbus Birds.

(By Associated Press)

It's a tight fit, but Kansas City still had the driver's seat in the American Association today after halving a doubleheader with Columbus.

The Blues dropped the opener 5 to 4, but hobbed back in the second with an 8 to 4 decision in an extra inning to keep the Red Birds out of first place.

Red Munger got his 12th win of the season in pitching the flock to victory on a five-hit performance. The Birds, meanwhile, dusted off Johnny Johnson in the first inning for three runs on five hits, including Eddie Lukon's 16th homer of the season, and never were headed thereafter.

The second game was marked by an argument between Manager Johnny Neun of the Blues and Manager Eddie Dyer over a decision which nearly brewed up some fisticuffs. The Birds captured a 7-4 lead after pushing across four runs in the sixth, but in the seventh, Pitchers Red Barrett and Harry Brecheen became wild and the Blues tied the score.

In the extra eighth inning, Ed Levy sent a long fly to Lukon to score Leo Nonnenkamp from third with the payoff run. Brecheen was charged with the loss, snapping his chain of 10 straight wins.

* * *

Louisville cracked St. Paul 3 to 1 in a tight mound duel between the Colonels' Lou Lucier and Lefty Dick Lanahan. Each pitcher permitted only five hits.

Minneapolis stayed only a step behind the leaders by trimming Indianapolis 9 to 3.

FAIR OR FOUL

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—Ford Frick, president of the National league finally has declared war against the bean ball and on managers in his circuit who laughingly condone—or viciously order—pitchers to throw at the heads of opposing hitters. After lengthy deliberation, Mr. Frick has decided upon preventive legislation, instead of an eventual autopsy. He stepped in just at the right moment. A little more hesitation on his part and every team in his league would have added a coroner to the squad to be on hand for that sad day when the nearest of kin must be advised.

* * *

The National league has been headed straight for a good killing. Sooner or later some hitter must stand there dopey-like while a pitch comes zinging in and without ever knowing what struck him will be carted away to have his career or his life ended.

* * *

Mr. Frick has decided that henceforth a manager will be automatically fined $200 whenever one of his pitchers is involved in a bean ball incident, and that the pitcher will be punished additionally in keeping with the umpires' reports.

Mr. Frick is a fortunate executive to have dilly-dallied this long before doing anything about this situation, without having some player maimed in the meantime. He has been reciting kind and gracious platitudes all season while everybody else knew that his league's pitchers were setting a pace for cowardly viciousness seldom before attained.

* * *

Mr. Frick's umpire-in-chief, Bill Klem, has been parroting Mr. Frick by saying there is nothing you can do about them. They both have been as empty as that.

Yet, finally, Mr. Frick does do something about it to try to eliminate an evil which does not prevail in the American league because they long since have decided they wouldn't stand for it any more.

All this season you have been reading about beanings in the National league between the Brooklyn Dodgers and nearly every other club in the league—with the Dodgers always accused of starting it—but you haven't seen one such incident in the American. The same general situation prevailed last season.

Perhaps the American has learned from experience, and the National refuses to accept the potential stark tragedy of deliberate attempts to knock a hitter's head off, which is not to be confused with inside pitches designed to drive a hitter away from the plate. The National league's problem is nothing so innocuous as that. It is deliberate beaning as Mr. Frick reluctantly has admitted in setting up that $200 fine for managers of bean-ball pitching pitchers.

One of baseball's great tragedies occurred 22 years ago as of next Sunday, or on Aug. 16, 1920, when Carl Mays of the New York Yankees let go with a fast ball that killed Ray Chapman, the Cleveland Indians' shortstop.

On May 25, 1937, the second incident of such magnitude left Mickey Cochrane, brilliant Detroit Tiger, prostrate with a fractured skull as a result of a pitch by Bump Hadley of the New York Yankees.

These were not a part of beanballing feuds. They were to all intents and purposes pitches that got away from the pitchers, or that the hitter didn't see in time to avoid. Yet, one man was killed and another was badly injured and the American somehow has managed to prevent a repetition. The National league has been more callous.

CHARLESTON SCORES THIRTEENTH SHUTOUT

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—(AP)—The Charleston Senators moved forward today on the Mid-Atlantic pennant road.

* * *

They blanked the Zanesville Cubs last night, 2 to 0, registering their 13th shutout of the season.

* * *

Second-place Dayton had little trouble with neighboring Springfield, winning 7 to 4. All Dayton runs came in a second inning explosion. Canton nosed Erie 2 to 1, although Til Panaranto, sailor pitcher, gave up only five hits.

Bosox Get Crack at Yankees

Champs Split Even But Increase League Lead.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THERE doesn't seem to be much the Boston Red Sox or anybody else can do to catch the New York Yankees, but the Red Sox get another chance today to slow them down.

* * *

As the Red Sox moved into Yankee stadium for a three-game set, they clung to second place in the American league by a lone percentage point but they trailed the defending champions by 13 lengths.

* * *

Although the Yankees divided a doubleheader with the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday, they tacked a full game to their lead with the help of the Washington Senators, who swept a night twin bill from the Red Sox, and the Chicago White Sox, who whipped Cleveland again.

It enabled the White Sox to step into fifth place.

The Senators pounded Oscar Judd and Mace Brown for 11 hits in taking the first game from the Red Sox, 9-3, last night, but the second game was a pitching duel in which Walt Masterson of the Senators triumphed over Joe Dobson, 1-0, although the Nats were outhit, 5 to 4.

At Chicago, the fast-traveling White Sox collected only five hits off Chubby Dean while the Tribe clipped Johnny Humphries for 11, but the Sox won, 3-1.

The Athletics tripped the Yankees and Red Ruffing, 4-1, but Ernie Bonham pitched the champs to a 3-2 decision in the nightcap.

* * *

In the National league, the Brooklyn Dodgers blanked the Philadelphia Phils, 6-0, in a twi-night affair and increased their lead to nine games over the St. Louis Cardinals, who went down before the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-4, in the only other contest on the day's card.

Resume City Title Series

Westies, O. P. S. Tangle Tonight at Prospect.

Westinghouse and Ohio Public Service resume their city championship softball series this evening at 6:15 at Prospect park with the battle for the title all tied up at a game apiece.

* * *

Westies broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning of the first game last week to edge to a 5-4 win, while O.P.S. came back with a 13-6 victory in the second tilt.

* * *

Crowds of approximately 1,000 and 1,200 fans saw the first two tilts, and tonight's attendance is expected to be along the same order.

Westinghouse will be without the services of George Hummel, left fielder, who left for the army last Thursday, but will have big Hairy Ross back on third base. Ross was on vacation last week.

* * *

Aid Geiger, Westinghouse ace, and Jim Musille, who chucked a three-hitter for O.P.S. last Wednesday, again will carry the mound chores.

* * *

Because of the annual O.P.S. picnic tomorrow evening, the fourth game of the series will be played Thursday at Johns park.

FARM BOOM Expected!

Government farm experts predict it. The prediction is based upon the necessity for feeding ourselves and Europe during and after the war.

Land prices have already started upward, say these experts, but it is clear to them that the big increases are yet to come.

Many attractive buys in strategically located undeveloped acreage and producing farms are being offered through News-Journal Want Ads. Careful selection and purchase of many of them will one day prove the keen foresight of those who invest now.

PAM—More About the Bronner Case. By A. W. Brewerton

NO STRANGERS ARE ALLOWED IN THIS PLANT! ALL WORKMEN ARE THOROUGHLY CHECKED BEFORE BEING EMPLOYED. THEY WEAR A BADGE ALLOWING THEM TO ENTER THE SHOPS!
8-11
"THEY ARE WATCHED CAREFULLY, ALSO. OF COURSE, THE OWNER, BRONNER, CAN GO ANYWHERE, ANY TIME, BUT CARNEY, THE FOREMAN, SAYS BRONNER RARELY WENT INTO THE SHOPS UNTIL JUST RECENTLY
"THAT'S WHAT CAUSED HIM, THE FOREMAN, TO NOTICE HE ALWAYS SAW BRONNER IN THE SHOPS JUST PRIOR TO THE DISCOVERY OF THE DIFFERENT SABOTAGE ACTS."
NOW THAT'S FUNNY--JUST LIKE LAST TIME! I SAW THE BOSS GO THROUGH HERE LESS'N AN HOUR AGO--AND NOW, HERE'S OUR BIGGEST HYDRAULIC PRESS OUT OF COMMISSION!
"BRONNER HAS DENIED GOING INTO THE SHOPS AT ALL ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS WHEN THE FOREMAN CLAIMS TO HAVE SEEN HIM"
I CAN'T UNDERSTAND WHAT CARNEY MEANS—WHY HE SHOULD SAY SUCH A THING--HE'S ALWAYS BEEN SO RELIABLE--WE NEVER HAD A DISAGREEMENT BEFORE.

STOCK PRICES MOVE UPWARD BY FRACTIONS

Commercial Loans Continue To Fall Off in Hundred Largest Cities.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Fractional advances had a shade the best of it in today's early stock market proceedings.

At a quiet opening gainers included Western Union, N. Y. Central, U. S. Rubber and North American. Slightly lower were Montgomery Ward and Kennecott.

Market analysts found little to cheer about in the federal reserve summary disclosing loans to commerce, industry and agriculture by member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Aug. 5 registered a drop of $24,000,000. Loans to securities brokers and dealers also fell $18,000,000.

Notice was taken of the New York federal reserve bank survey estimating department store sales in the metropolitan area last week were 12 per cent under the comparable 1941 period. In the preceding week the year-to-year recession was placed at 13 per cent.

To Westinghouse men and women for "an outstanding contribution to victory"

IN announcing that five of the first fifty-three Army-Navy Production Awards go to Westinghouse, James Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy, said, "The men and women in these plants are making an outstanding contribution to victory. Their practical patriotism stands as an example to all Americans and they have reason to be proud of the record they have set."

Westinghouse is now producing war equipment at the rate of 4000 carloads per month . . . enough to fill a freight train 37 miles long every 30 days.

This is the record to date. We hope to make it still better tomorrow.
